PREFACE

PROMPTED by a long-cherished desire to prepare a complete Genealogical and Historical Record of the Hunsicker Family, that might prove to be valuable and interesting to our descendants, we applied ourselves to the task, having obtained, during the lifetime of our revered father and of older relatives, data not now procurable.

It was our purpose originally to include in our book the entire family of the progenitor Valentine Hunsicker, who by his first marriage had two children, Elizabeth and Samuel, and by his second marriage seven children, Valentine, Jacob, Isaac, Sara, Catherine, Abraham, and Henry; but, confronted by the magnitude of the labor involved in the collection of all the names, dates of births, of marriages, and of deaths of the many descendants of this numerous family, we concluded (at our time of life) to confine ourselves to the compilation of the names belonging to the Fifth Branch only of our grandfather Henry Hunsicker (second generation), youngest son of the progenitor Valentine Hunsicker (first generation).

Apparent indifference on the part of some relatives to respond to inquiries directed to them for information has prevented as complete a list of all the names belonging to our branch as we desired. Where names and dates do not appear, it is from no fault of ours.

In the preparation of our book the aim has been not merely to furnish names and a brief history of our progenitor and sketches of some of the more prominent of his descendants, but rather to stir up a spirit of becoming pride in his posterity to emulate the worth and character of honored ancestors.

Our family came early to the shores of America, driven hither by religious persecution, and induced by the wise counsel of William Penn to come to Pennsylvania and enjoy religious liberty in company with many others from Holland, Germany, and Switzerland, who first settled in Germantown.

Subsequently they scattered over Bucks and Montgomery Counties, where at present many of their descendants reside. Originally tillers of the soil, most of them, by thrift and industry, soon acquired a competency and owned some of the finest farms of the country. Later on, others embarked in other pursuits—quite a number engaged in the professions of law and the ministry. Not a few are among our successful merchants and manufacturers.

Our ancestors sprung from the best blood of Europe; some held high posts of honor in civil life in the Dutch dominion in the time of Prince William of Orange.

We submit our work especially to relatives and friends, hoping it may prove an interesting record, valuable in enabling them to trace their family relations; we thank those who responded promptly to our many inquiries for information. The work has been tedious and required years of research to bring together the many names contained.

The compiler is especially indebted to his brother, Horace M. Hunsicker, of Philadelphia, for most valuable assistance in the correspondence involved in the collection of names and dates and assisting in the final arrangement of the book.

DUTCH ANCESTRY OF ELIZABETH KOLB, WIFE OF VALENTINE HUNSICKER

AN DE VOSSEN married Prientje Batten. Was Burgomeister (Mayor) von Handschooten in Flanders about 1550. Had four children.

Pieter De Vossen was fourth child. Married Jannecke Vander Mers, daughter of Michael Vander Mers, who was Burgomeister of his native city. Pieter De Vossen shortly after his marriage went to England on account of persecution, to Colchester, where he, with his wife, left popedom and joined the Reformed Church. After a time they returned to Amsterdam and joined the Mennonites.

They had six children; three were born during their stay in England.

Sara De Vossen, their fourth child, born October, 1629, married 6 May, 1655 (died 2 February, 1669), Pieter Van Sintern, born 22 April, 1628; died 25 March, 1669. Had seven children.

Isaac Van Sintern, fifth child, born 4 September, 1662; died 23 August, 1737; married at Amsterdam, Neeltje Classen, born 13 May, 1660; died 29 May, 1735. Had four children. They left Hamburg, Altona, in 1707, for Pennsylvania, with their four daughters, Magdalena, Sara, Adriana, and Neeltje, and settled at Germantown.

Sara, the second daughter of Isaac Van Sintern, born in 1690; died 25 April, 1766; married, 21 May, 1710, Jacob Kolb (compiler's great-great-grandfather, born 21 May, 1685) in the Mennonite meeting-house (built 1708), Dirk Keyser officiating. Had nine children.

Elizabeth Kolb, third child of Jacob Kolb,* born 23 June, 1716, married Valentine Hunsicker, first generation in our family register, in 1735. He died 30 March, 1771.

* Jacob Kolb, son of Dielman Kolb, of Wolfstein in Baden, Germany, was born in 1648 and died in 1712, and is buried at Manheim. He married the fifth child, a daughter of Peter Schumacher, who afterwards came to Germantown, Pa., in 1685; died in 1707, aged 85 years. He was a Mennonite, but later united with the Friends. His wife was born 1652, died 1705, and is buried at Wolfstein in the Palatinate. Their children were Peter, Ann, Martin, Jacob (our great-great-grandfather), Henry, Dielman, and Johannes.

IN LEAVING to our children a record of the names and short biographical sketches of their ancestors, it is proper that we embody in our family book a brief history of the cause that brought our fathers to the shores of America. Also to remind them of some of the hardships and privations they endured in the wilderness on the wooded shores of the Delaware, exposed to the rigors of climate, to wild beasts and roving bands of Indians, and where they depended mainly on axe and spade to extract a living among stumps, roots, and stones after felling trees to erect log huts for habitation.

It was during the latter part of the seventeenth century when violent religious persecutions arose in Europe and drove our fathers from their homes, after William Penn had travelled through Holland, Germany, and Switzerland, and offered them homes in America, where they might enjoy liberty of conscience in matters of religion, when hundreds left home and friends behind them, braved the stormy deep, and landed on these inhospitable shores, with scarcely any resources except their courage, their strong arms, and their firm reliance on the guidance of a righteous Providence to direct their steps.

Under a charter granted to William Penn during the reign of Charles II, King of England, dated January 27, 1682, right and title were granted to these possessions, for the consideration and payment, to the heirs and successors of King Charles II, of two beaver skins to be delivered at Windsor Castle on the 1st of January of every year, and also the fifth part of all gold and silver ore which should from time to time happen to be found within the limits aforesaid.

The first impulse to the wave of immigration was received at Crefeld, a town on the Rhine, close to the Netherland country. Crefeld had an humble population of weavers and craftsmen, among them Quakers and Mennonites who had endured many persecutions. Penn visited and comforted these lonely people in 1677, during his visits to the Continent, and they never forgot his ministrations. When the news of his scheme for settling the newly acquired province reached them, they at once prepared to send some of their number to recruit his forces. On 10 March, 1682, Penn conveyed to Jacob Telner and Jan Streepers, merchants, and Dirk Sipman, deeds for 5000 acres of land to each, to be laid out in Pennsylvania. Daniel Francis Pastorius, a remarkable man of good family, of official standing and well educated, and identified with the Frankford Company in purchasing 25,000 acres of land in Pennsylvania, is entitled to the credit of being the founder of Germantown, or, as he preferred to call it, Germanapolis.

Jacob Isaac Van Bebber and three others each purchased 1000 acres of land on 11 June, 1683, and arranged to settle a colony at Germantown,—the condition of their purchase from Penn being, indeed, that they should settle a certain number of families on their land within a specified time. The arrangement was carried out, a company went to Rotterdam, and, after some delays, sailed from London in the ship “Concord” on 24 July, 1683, in company with Penn’s friends, James Claypoole, his family, and the settlers he was taking out. The greater part of the purchasers as well as the settlers were Mennonites, “religious, good people,” as Richard Townshend, the Quaker preacher, who came over in the “Welcome,” denominates them. The pioneers had a pleasant voyage. “The blessing of the Lord did attend us,” says Claypoole. The adventurers reached their destination late in October, and, after securing their respective lots, began at once to dig cellars and erect their huts for winter, naturally having to endure hardships and privation.

Thus was formed the nucleus of the first German settlement in America. In 1685 Pieter Schumacher of Cresheim, founder of a leading family, came over and settled in Germantown. The Kassels came in 1686, in which year also a Quaker meeting-house was built, used both by the Friends and the Mennonites. William Rittinghausen, who came over in 1687, was a Mennonite preacher. His family had long followed paper-making, and in 1690 he erected on the Wissahickon the paper-mill which supplied paper to William Bradford, the earliest printer in the middle colonies. Dirk Keyser came over and settled in Germantown in 1688, a descendant of that Leonard Keyser said to be one of the Waldenses who was burned to death as a Mennonite at Scharding in 1527.

It was with these first settlers that our Dutch ancestors (the Van Sinterns) and our German ancestors (the Kolbs) came over, and later inter-married with Valentine Hunsicker, the progenitor of the Hunsicker Family.

THE NAME "HUNSICKER"

THE origin of names and their meaning are always interesting. It has been asked, what is the origin and meaning of our family name "Hunsicker"?

It is variously written—namely, Hunsicker, Hunsecker, Hunsiker, Hunziger, Huntzinger, Hunsucker.

The most plausible theory arrived at of its origin has been solved by Prof. G. K. Fischer, a son of Dr. Fischer, late of Philadelphia, who is at present with his family residing in Switzerland, and has been at some pains to find the key to the solution. Prof. Fischer writes: "I am so close to the part of the world from which the old stock (Hunsicker) originated, it has been of considerable interest to me to investigate the subject. The results are as follows:

"In the centre of Schwarzwald (the German Black Forest) about 70 miles north of Zurich, the native town of Valentine Hunsicker, is a district of forest valleys and mountain streams, which seems to have been the stopping-place or headquarters of the Huns, probably during the time of Attila's invasion, who was a Hun of royal lineage. The sword of their God promised them the dominion of the world.

"This great barbarian tribe has left its name on the landmarks of all this district. These are Hunsruck, Hunsruecken (Ridge), Hunsbach (Creek), etc. Among them, in the corner of the valley, we have finally Hunseck or Huns Valley. The name Ecke, or corner, is common to all valley locations in that part of Schwarzwald. I suppose it means that part of the valley that widens out, or the end of the valley which forms a sort of cozy corner for the settlement; and so we have a vast number of Eckes,—Longeck (Long Valley), Rotheck (Red Valley), and so Hunseck (Huns Valley).

"The large part of the family names in this part of the world are derived from the locality with which the early stock was identified.

"So we may easily infer that the original Hunsicker came from Hunseck."

FIRST GENERATION

VALENTINE HUNSICKER

UR Ancestor Valentine Hunsicker was born in the Canton Zurich, Switzerland, —, 1700.

He was an orphan, and came with his maternal grandfather, Valentine Klemmer, to America in 1717. Died 30 March, 1771.

After a short stay at Germantown, Pa., among the Palatinate settlers, the family in company with some others pushed into the interior of the dense forests of Eastern Pennsylvania, going as far north as northern Bucks County, into a district known as "der gross Schwamm" (big swamp), later called Lower Milford, which name it still retains.

In common with other primitive settlers, their house was built of roughly hewn logs, plastered with clay, and their living depended on what they could extract from hasty clearings and from the game then abounding in these wilds. It is needless to add that they were poor, compelled to depend mainly on axe and spade for a living. Young Valentine was at once thrown upon his own resources as a laborer, and was hired out to chop wood, and at intervals assist his grandfather at weaving, to help pay the cost of his passage across the ocean.

About 1720 or 1721 he went, with his uncle Henry Klemmer, who was a stone-mason, to Van Bebber (now called Skippack) and assisted him as a laborer. He helped his uncle to build the first Mennonite meeting-house there in 1724 (the second built in America; that at Germantown was built first, in 1708). He remained in Skippack, and by industry and economy saved enough to purchase 125 acres of wild land, for which he paid five shillings per acre, to which he subsequently added 100 acres more. The same or part of the same was lately occupied by Henry B. Hunsicker of the sixth generation.

Philadelphia County Records show, by census taken in 1756 by Walter Johnson by order of the Provincial Government, that Valentine Hunsicker had five children, and was assessed for 225 acres of land, 100 acres being clear.

He married in 1728; the name of his first wife is unknown. By his first marriage he had two children, the eldest, a daughter, Elizabeth; she married a man named Ruth, of which family we have lost trace; and a son named Samuel, who never married. In 1732 Valentine's wife died.

He afterward, in 1735, married Elizabeth Kolb, daughter of Jacob Kolb (see under "Dutch Ancestry"). I have her ancestry traced back six generations to Holland, through the Von Sintern, Vander Mers, and the De Vossens, very distinguished families of Amsterdam. Two members, at different times, were Burgomeisters of their native cities.

Valentine Hunsicker became a deacon in the Mennonite Church and was active in building up the congregation in Skippack, though his ancestors in Switzerland were Reformed. By persevering toil and industry, he had cleared fully one-half of his land in his lifetime. Had a family of seven children: five sons, Jacob, Isaac, and Henry (our grandfather), and two daughters, Sara and Catherine (two children, Valentine and Abraham, died in infancy). He died 3 March, 1771, and lies interred in the old Mennonite burying-ground in Skippack, but no stone marks his resting place. He directed, by will, that his son Henry, though still a minor at his father's death, should come in possession of the farm, which he did. He in turn left it to his son (our uncle Garret). Garret left it to his son Christian, Christian to his son Garret. Garret's son Henry lately occupied the same. It belonged to the family almost 170 years.

It was our original intention to include all the descendants of the other sisters and brothers of Henry, the youngest, for which omission we express the greatest regret, but were unable to enlist the assistance of the other branches.

REV. HENRY HUNSICKER

Henry Hunsicker<sup>2</sup>, youngest child of Valentine Hunsicker, was born in the old homestead, in Skippack Township, 7 March, 1752. Like his older brothers, Jacob and Isaac, he was brought up a farmer. With tastes and aptitudes early evinced, combined with determined will and rare force of character, he acquired a fair education, so that he spoke and wrote well, both in German and English. Added to these natural gifts, he inherited strong constitutional vigor from both parents, blending the fire of Swiss patriotism and spirit of freedom on his father's side with the sturdy Dutch blood and indomitable will power of the Van Sinterns and De Vossens on his grandmother's side.

At the age of thirty, he was ordained a Mennonite minister, and was soon after made the ruling Bishop of the district. He was an eminently practical man, possessing knowledge beyond that of most men among the Pennsylvania Germans of his time. Gifted by nature with a warm heart and a ready hand to assist, he became popular, influential, and useful both in the church and in the community. He was much sought and consulted, both in worldly and spiritual matters, being endowed with excellent common sense and good judgment. He was much employed in settling estates and appointed guardian of orphans. He was social, generous, and candid, not austere or rigorous, not inclined to the prevailing prejudices of the denomination to which he belonged, whose undue partiality for ancient forms and customs almost approached veneration. He claimed that he always gained in every argument; if his own was the weaker, he endorsed that of his opponent. He was quick-witted and abounded in repartee.

During his ministerial age travel was on horseback. He was contemporary with Bishop Matthias Pennypacker of Chester County, the great-grandfather of Ex-Governor Pennypacker of Schwenksville, Pa. The two rode horseback side by side many times in their ministerial visits to churches, and on numerous occasions met in general conference at the mother Mennonite Church in Germantown.

It was the custom among the Mennonites then, and still is to some extent, not to pay their ministers for their services. A rich parishioner of his one day remarked, "I don't see how you can afford to give your time and services gratuitously." He curtly replied, "Why, then, don't you pay me?"

The writer (then in his eleventh year) has a distinct personal recollection of Grandfather Hunsicker, who gave him a present (having been named for him), two Spanish silver dollars, some six or seven years before his death. He was fond of children and disposed to playfully tease them. He always kept a cup of mint drops in a little wall-closet near where he sat, which was invariably brought out when children came around. In offering the mint drop, he first demanded a kiss.

The writer remembers well the place in which he sat in the long old-fashioned pulpit in the old meeting-house in Skippack, that stood near the wall in the northwest side of the present cemetery or graveyard.

He was married to Esther Detweiler, 6 December, 1772. She was born 13 March, 1751; died 18 August, 1829. She was the daughter of John Detweiler and came from an old, respectable, and substantial family in Skippack Township.

Henry and Esther Hunsicker had ten children (nine of them married and had families), six sons and four daughters, born in the following order: John, Elizabeth, Anna, Catherine, Henry, Jacob, Garret, Abraham (died less than a month old), Sarah, Abraham 2d.

Henry Hunsicker served faithfully in the ministry about fifty-four years and died 8 June, 1836, in the eighty-fifth year of his age. The writer remembers well the day of his death, being then nearly eleven years old. He lies interred side by side with the partner of his joys and sorrows in the cemetery belonging to the old Mennonite Church in Skippack, which he served so long. Tombstones mark the place.

WILL OF HENRY HUNSICKER.

BE IT REMEMBERED, that I Henry Hunsicker of Perkiomen and Skippack Township in the County of Montgomery and State of Pennsylvania being considerably advanced in years of age and taking into consideration the uncertainty of this transitory life, and the situation of my family, and being by Divine Providence of sound and disposing mind and memory, do this twenty seventh day of May in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and thirty, make and establish this to be my last will and testament in manner following—

I order and direct my hereinafter named Executors to pay all my just debts and funeral expenses. Item, I give and devise until my son Garret Hunsicker and to his heirs and assigns all that my plantation whereon I and my said son Garrett now dwells situate in Perkiomen and Skippack Township aforesaid, as devised to me by the last will and testament of my father Valentine Hunsicker deceased, containing by computation, one hundred and fifteen acres of land be it the same more or less, which plantation I value to my said son Garret at the sum of five thousand four hundred Dollars lawful money to be paid in the joint aggregate stock of my estate within one year after my decease. Item twenty acres of woodland situate in Perkiomen and Skippack Township aforesaid, and all the remainder and residue of my estate, real personal and mixed, I order and direct my executors hereinafter named to convert into money by public or private sale, in such allotments as they shall deem most advantageous to all my children. Hereby authorising and empowering my said Executors or the survivors or survivor to make and lawfully execute all necessary deeds or conveyances for confirming any lands so sold to the respective purchasers in fee simple. Item I nominate, constitute and appoint my three sons, John Hunsicker, Garret Hunsicker and Abraham Hunsicker executors of this my last will and testament giving and granting to them or the survivors or survivor, full power and authority to carry the same into full effect, and execute the same according to the true intent and meaning hereof revoking all former wills and testaments by me heretofore made ratifying and confirming this as my last will and testament.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and seal the day and year first above written.

Signed, Sealed, Published and Pronounced by Henry Hunsicker as his last will and testament in the presence of us who at his request have hereunto subscribed our names as WITNESSES.

THIRD GENERATION

JOHN HUNSICKER<sup>3</sup> (Henry<sup>2</sup>, Valentine<sup>1</sup>), eldest son of Henry<sup>2</sup> and Esther Detweiler, born 27 August, 1773, in Skippack Township, Montgomery County, Pa.; died 17 November, 1847; married (1), 9 May, 1797, Elizabeth Detweiler, daughter of John Detweiler, born 11 January, 1779; died 28 February, 1842; (2), Catherine High, widow of Henry High. She was born 15 August, 1789; died 30 December, 1865.

He lived on the farm now owned and occupied by his grandson John S. Hunsicker, Esq., in Perkiomen Township. He was an ordained Mennonite minister for nearly forty years, and succeeded his father, who had been in the ministry fifty-four years, as preacher and Bishop.

The means of obtaining an education were poor when he was young, but natural talent and a strong mind enabled him to acquire knowledge far beyond many of his time.

He was not of an aggressive spirit, but rather of a mild nature and kindly disposition; yet he broke away from some of the rigid and exacting customs peculiar to the sect to which he belonged. He was progressive and availed himself of means for information.

He was a contributing member of the Trappe Literary Society which flourished about 1840, and read many of the books of its library.

His mental characteristics are plainly traceable through his children, giving evidence in the production of professional talent, as well as character, in his grandchildren, three of whom are distinguished lawyers, three are ministers of the Gospel (though of different denominations), and one occupied for some years the distinguished position of President of Girard College in Philadelphia.

They were the parents of seven children, four sons and three daughters. All married and had families, except one son, who died young.

Jacob Hunsicker was a successful farmer, and resided for many years on the farm now owned by Joseph Robison near Perkiomen Bridge, where all his children were born. He possessed noble qualities of character, was eminently social, kind-hearted, and helpful as a man and neighbor in many ways.

The quality of character is traceable in some of his descendants, notably in Mrs. Sarah H. Longstreth, a granddaughter, graduate of Pennsylvania Female College, prominent in the reform movements of the day; in that of her son Mayne R. Longstreth, a rising lawyer at the Philadelphia Bar; and in a grandson, F. B. Wonsetler of Norristown, Pa., of the firm of Coleman & Wonsetler, successfully engaged in the insurance business in Philadelphia. We could add more names to our list of distinguished offspring of this father in Israel.

the Hunsicker Family, and father of the compiler of the Hunsicker Family Book, was born 31 July, 1793, in East Perkiomen Township, Montgomery County, Pa. He married Elizabeth (Shoemaker) Alderfer, of Lower Salford, Pa., 30 May, 1816. Had ten children, Ann, Benjamin, Esther, Henry A., Abraham, Elizabeth, Elias A., Mary, Catherine, and Horace M. These all had families.

Brought up a farmer, he purchased a farm in 1816 in the present borough of Collegetown, where he continued to reside, engaged in the calling of his life until 1850, and where all his children were born.

During his boyhood the schools, mostly German, were open only during winter months and very ordinary, so that opportunity for learning was very limited. Thrown upon the resources of his native energy and battling with the disadvantages incident to such a condition, even by dint of perseverance he acquired only a very ordinary education, scarcely sufficient to "read, write, and cipher." But brought in contact with the larger world around him, possessing a strong natural endowment, with rare energy of character he applied himself to master the first principles of education and raised himself to a level to meet the problems of life.

Realizing in himself the need of knowledge, his mind was early directed to making provision for better educational facilities for those who should come after him. Being a member of the Mennonite Church and holding such views, he encountered the opposition of his brethren, who held tenaciously to the venerated customs and forms of the church, and regarded higher education an innovation tending to the disorganization of what they held sacred.

It was at the general Mennonite Conference held in Franconia, Pa., May, 1846, that the strife and foment culminated in a schism or rupture of the church, virtually excommunicating any and all who dared opposition to the long-established usages and customs of the Mennonite Church.

On 1 January, 1847, according to the custom of the Mennonites, an election to choose a minister by lot was held in the Mennonite meeting-house in Skippack, Pa., when he was elected. So important an office to one so poorly qualified awakened a sense of responsibility that no one can realize who has not been placed in a like position.

In prayer to God he sought guidance, and with new devotion to duty invoked spiritual illumination to aid him in his sacred calling. It was now that he felt more than ever before the need of a provision for more and better knowledge, and resolved before God to found a school that should afford to others means of obtaining that of which he was deprived and made to feel the sad disadvantages.

When about to start the cherished project of his life, to found a school, his brother, Rev. John Hunsicker, died in November, 1847, who was at that time presiding Bishop of the Skippack, Providence, and Methatchen churches (the same over which his father, Rev. Henry Hunsicker, had presided as Bishop for fifty-four years). After the death of his brother John, the office of Bishop devolved on him. Again he was deeply impressed with the solemn and arduous duties of his high office and invoked the enlightening and strengthening influence of Divine Grace for guidance and support. With prayerful determination, he accordingly, in 1848, founded and built Freeland Seminary, and placed his son, Henry A., as principal, over it. The school flourished beyond expectation, though it received but small patronage from the Mennonites whom it hoped to benefit. Its non-sectarian spirit commended it to the popular support of an appreciative people.

Impelled by the same liberal Christian principle of non-sectarianism, he built the Christian Trinity Church in 1853, intending it to be an Independent Church, open to evangelical ministers of good standing and people of all and every Christian denomination of whatever name. His former unpleasant denominational connection of rigid austerity imposed by formal authority by unreasonable prejudice made him a non-conformist to denominationalism of every kind. Liberal-minded, charitable, and warm-hearted toward every child of God, he welcomed them to his church without respect of person. In full belief that God's blessing would crown his enterprise, begun to His honor and carried on in His fear, to uplift his fellow-man, he persevered in his efforts, and lived to enjoy the signal vindication of his cherished project.

The success attendant on the founding of Freeland Seminary in 1848, a school designed especially for young men and boys, encouraged the founding and establishment of Pennsylvania Female College, opened in 1851 under Prof. J. Warrenne Sunderland.

The influence of these institutions of learning, owing their existence to the enterprise and labors of Rev. Abraham Hunsicker, have been most marked in raising a high educational standard in the surrounding country.

Elizabeth Alderfer, his wife, died 15 February, 1898, in her hundredth year. Had ten children, fifty-eight grandchildren, sixty-five great-grandchildren, and twelve great-great-grandchildren.

Her father, Benjamin Alderfer, born 18 October, 1771, married Elizabeth Shoemaker. He died 18 June, 1840.

Her grandfather John Alderfer, born 8 February, 1745, married Elizabeth Rosenberger. He died 19 December, 1820.

Was christened a Lutheran, but joined the Mennonites in America.

He died 7 November, 1801, in his eighty-seventh year.

FOURTH GENERATION

He was born in Perkiomen Township, Montgomery County, Pa.

He had meagre opportunity for obtaining an education, in those early years of the nineteenth century, by reason of poor schools and short school sessions. Notwithstanding these disadvantages, an inherent thirst for knowledge and diligent perseverance in study enabled him to acquire an education above the average in his time.

He commenced life as a farmer. Afterward, with his uncle Anthony Vanderslice, he embarked in the lumber, grain, and coal business, at Black Rock on the Schuylkill River, several miles northeast of Phoenixville, in which occupation he continued many years.

He became more or less interested in civil and political affairs and was an enthusiastic admirer of Henry Clay. During the administration of Joseph Ritner, Governor of Pennsylvania, he was appointed Associate Judge, sitting at the courts of Norristown, where he presided a number of years.

As a man of ripe judgment, honored and respected, and of varied experience, he was looked up to and much consulted by his fellow-men.

He passed his years of threescore and ten, and was gathered home peacefully with his fathers before him.

September, 1806; died 22 April, 1894. He was born in Albany Township, Berks County, Pa. Came to Montgomery County in early manhood, resided on a farm in Perkiomen Township, near Gratersford, until 1856, when he sold the farm and removed to Freeland (now Collegeville) for the purpose of giving his sons an education at Freeland Seminary. He then engaged in the produce business, driving to Philadelphia weekly. Early in the '60's he engaged in the grain and coal business at Royersford, Pa., for some years. Later he purchased a grist-mill near Collegeville, retiring some ten years before his death. He was president of the Perkiomen and Sunneytown Turnpike Company for many years, and an Elder in Trinity Christian Church, Collegeville, from its organization, until a few years before his death. ### GARRET DETWEILER HUNSICKER

Garret Detweiler Hunsicker, the youngest son of Rev. John Hunsicker (No. 7), was born 3 February, 1814, on a farm, still occupied by one of the descendants, on the west bank of the Perkiomen Creek, south of Iron Bridge, Perkiomen Township, Montgomery County, Pa. His mother was a daughter of Johannes Detweiler and Catherine Funk, the latter being a direct descendant of Bishop Henry Funk. The former was a son of Joseph Detweiler, the son of Hans Detweiler. This family was noted for their height, size, and strength. He was married, 19 February, 1839, to Elizabeth Wigton Morgan, a woman of more than ordinary alertness of mind and of fine executive ability; an extensive reader, and a ready conversationalist, being interested in affairs of church, of state, and of reform; a devout Christian, with a most comprehensive knowledge of the Scriptures, her almost exclusive reading in early years; active in Christian service, having been from its organization, in 1837, a teacher in the Sunday-school of her church for more than forty years; even previous to this, having taught in the school of St. James' Episcopal Church, Evansburg. In both life and character she well filled out the picture of the model woman in the thirty-first chapter of Proverbs. Of this union four children lived to maturity: J. Quincy (No. 121); Mary M., married, 16 February, 1871, to John R. Thomas, died 31 July, 1876; Ella M., at present a teacher in the Benedict College, Columbia, S. C.; and Robert M. (No. 124).

In partnership with Isaac Detweiler he was, from 1836 to April, 1843, engaged in store-keeping at Providence Square. Upon relinquishing this, he moved to Mingo Mill, on Mingo Creek near where it enters the Schuylkill River, about one mile east of Royersford in Upper Providence. On 1 May, 1848, he moved to his father-in-law's farm, on Germantown Turnpike, in Lower Providence, between Perkiomen Bridge and the old village of Evansburg. In 1855 he purchased a farm north of Evansburg, on the road leading north from St. James' Episcopal Church; situate partly in Lower Providence and partly in Perkiomen Township, to which he moved 27 February of that year. He sold this farm in 1871 to John R. Thomas, his son-in-law, and J. Quincy Hunsicker, his son. He continued, however, to reside there until 1877, when he moved into the house at the east end of Evansburg, long occupied by Dr. John R. Grigg. Here he spent the remainder of his life.

He received such education as the schools of the locality afforded. Possessed of a keen mind, he had more than ordinary intelligence; and through extensive reading and observation, with the benefit of good home associations, he became a man well informed on all topics of general interest, and entertained advanced ideas upon the questions of the day. He early became interested in public matters. He took great interest in temperance reform, actively coöperating in the Washingtonian agitation of 1840 and subsequent years.

He had a great fondness for music, and, having a good and well-cultivated voice, attained quite an excellency in vocal music. It was one of his achievements, with friends of musical taste, to sing by note any piece of music at sight. When the Providence Mennonite Church substituted English for German in its services, he took charge of the singing. He also gave free instruction in vocal music to the young folks of the locality, who formed classes for that purpose, meeting weekly in the school-houses in the surrounding neighborhood.

On 6 March, 1859, he became a member of the Lower Providence Baptist Church, his wife having been a member previous to marriage. For many years before becoming a member he was leader of the choir, and afterwards, until 1875, when he was succeeded by his son, Robert M. He filled, at different times, the post of clerk and trustee, and for many years he was Sunday-school superintendent.

In politics he was originally an Old Line Whig, antislavery in sentiment, and was an original Republican. He always took an active interest in party affairs, and filled a prominent place in its councils and activities. In 1860 he was the nominee of the party for clerk of the courts. He ran considerably ahead of the party vote, but not enough to overcome the strong Democratic majority of the county at that time. In 1867 he was a party candidate for County Treasurer, with like result. During Lincoln's Administration he served acceptably as one of the first Board of Revenue Assessors for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania. He resigned from this office when President Johnson broke with his party. In 1870 he served as census enumerator for the Townships of Perkiomen and Worcester. During the Rebellion he was an enthusiastic and consistent supporter of the Lincoln Administration and its various policies. He took an active and important part in raising funds for bounties paid to men who enlisted to fill the quota required of his township under the calls of the President for additional recruits. In those days banking facilities were not such as now. On one occasion he was one of a committee of three, representing Perkiomen Township, who collected a very large sum of money required to pay the bounties to those enlisting. The money was carried in currency to Harrisburg in a valise, at a time when the city was greatly congested by the presence of many others on like errands, and those desiring to enlist, bounty jumpers, and other adventurers. They secured the requisite number, disbursed the money necessary to pay the bounties, and returned without any untoward event.

He was public-spirited and occupied a prominent place in business circles. For many years he was secretary of the Montgomery County Mutual Fire Insurance Company. With the treasurer of the Company he traversed all parts of the county and part of Philadelphia County, at stated periods, collecting assessments, meeting the members at points according to previous announcement. This gave him a very extensive acquaintance, reaching to every part of the district. Speaking with equal ease both in English and German gave him peculiar adaptation for the duties of this office. He was one of the organizers and incorporators of the Perkiomen Valley Fire Insurance Company, a very successful organization, of which he was for a number of years director and secretary. He was also active in organizing and subsequently managing and conducting to a successful conclusion the Upper and Lower Providence Building and Loan Association. He was also one of the organizers of, and took an active part in projecting and building, the Perkiomen Railroad, and served for some years as a director.

He was in addition to his other activities a progressive farmer for many years, employing machinery and other improved devices and methods. Early in the '50's he and D. Morgan Casselberry, a neighboring farmer with advanced ideas, bought a McCormick mower and reaper, the first in that part of the State. It required four horses and two men to operate the reaper and was a great curiosity at the time. When first put in operation, people came from all directions to see it. Laborers objected, and some refused to work on the farms, because they regarded the use of such appliances as detrimental to their interests. It was not long, however, until laborers preferred working where such improvements were in use. He kept abreast of the times by taking and reading agricultural papers and other publications of that kind. The result was that his farm was brought to a high state of cultivation and produced great and therefore unusual crops.

Mr. Hunsicker was widely known and enjoyed the confidence and respect of all who knew him. He was a large man, of fine presence, six feet two inches in height, of rare natural ability, general bearing, and with quite a vein of humor. He was a good conversationalist, and, being well informed on subjects of general as well as of local interest, was an interesting character.

He always had the courage of his convictions, and was ever ready to maintain them, but in such a way as not to give offence to those who differed with him. He consequently had many friends amongst Democrats as well as Republicans, although the times were such that animosities often prevailed between those of opposite parties.

His death, due to an attack of apoplexy a year previous, occurred 19 February, 1879, the fortieth anniversary of his marriage. His remains are interred in the cemetery of the Lower Providence Baptist Church by the side of those of the wife of his youth, whose death occurred 20 October, 1883.

78. HENRY A. HUNSICKER<sup>4</sup> (Abraham<sup>3</sup>, Henry<sup>2</sup>, Valentine<sup>1</sup>), second son and fourth child of Abraham<sup>3</sup> and Elizabeth Alderfer, born 10 November, 1825, in what is now Collegeville, Montgomery County, Pa.; married, (1) 23 August, 1849, Mary S. Weinberger, born 31 January, 1830; died 7 May, 1874; (2) 11 May, 1876, Anna C. Gotwals, born 23 September, 1853.

His father was a farmer, and as a farmer's boy the subject of this sketch was brought up. He was instructed in the duties of farm life in the period when the sickle, the scythe, and the grain cradle were the reaping implements; when the flail and horse-treading were the processes of threshing out the grain; when flax was raised and in all its processes of manufacture mainly supplied what cotton does now; when sheep were raised on the farm and furnished the wool which was spun, woven, and made into the family clothing; when wood was the fuel and coal scarcely thought of; when tallow candles and oil lamps furnished the light; when the tinder-box, with its burned rags, flint, and steel, was depended on to start the morning fire. These and other slow, primitive drawbacks, compared with modern improved mechanical appliances and labor-saving machinery, were trials to contend with, but they were not without benefit in strengthening and developing the body and adding tone and vigor to mind and character as well. The great inventions and their adaptation to the needs of humanity, the real glories of the nineteenth century, far surpass all the discoveries of the eighteen previous centuries. These have been brought about during his lifetime.

Poor schools and incompetent teachers (then called school-masters) and winter sessions of three months afforded very limited opportunity for learning. There was no system or classification or uniform set of text-books. To a boy fond of books and study, it may be well imagined, there was a gloomy outlook. The father, noting the tendency of the boy's fondness for study, sent him, at the age of ten years, to Henry Prizer's boarding school at Trappe. Mr. Prizer died in 1838, and was succeeded by Rev. Henry S. Rodenbaugh. He continued under Mr. Rodenbaugh's instruction until 1845. Later he became a pupil of Rev. Samuel Aaron at Norristown, Pa.

By diligence and close application he made fair progress. In the fall of 1843 he was induced to take charge of a country subscription school in Lower Salford, Montgomery County. He was required to teach German along with the usual English branches.

Thus for five years alternately going to school and teaching, he was induced by his father, in the fall of 1848, to take charge of Freeland Seminary, a boarding school for young men and boys which his father founded the same year.

Assisted by a corps of able instructors, all the common branches, together with the higher mathematics, the sciences, and ancient and modern languages, were taught. The school grew in numbers and reputation, and had among its pupils Wayne MacVeagh (afterwards Attorney-General under President Garfield), his brother Franklin MacVeagh (the present Secretary of the Treasury under President Taft), John R. Brooke, Major-General of the Army of the United States, and many other men of note.

Under the blessing of Providence the school proved to be eminently prosperous, so that at the close of his administration in 1865 nearly 3600 young men and boys had been students under him.

After seventeen years of devoted labor as principal of Freeland Seminary, he leased the school to Prof. A. H. Fetterolf (now Dr. Fetterolf, ex-President of Girard College), who also had been a pupil of Freeland Seminary, and became professor of mathematics, and vice-principal of the school.

In 1869 he sold Freeland Seminary to a corporation headed by Dr. Bomberger of Philadelphia, who obtained a charter and opened Ursinus College.

Through the ownership by his father and his sons of a tract of fourteen thousand acres of timber lands purchased in 1850 in Potter and Cameron Counties, he embarked in the lumber business in the autumn of 1865, remaining engaged in the same more or less up to the present time.

He was called to the ministry in 1850 by the liberal wing of the Mennonite Church to assist in his father's bishopric. This he did in conjunction with his duties as principal of the school. But by reason of dissensions arising among the members of the churches from different views held in regard to matters of discipline and church government, he left the Mennonite Church when his father did, and joined him in the enterprise of founding the Trinity Christian Church at Collegeville, intended to be an independent, non-denominational church.

He is at present a member and a ruling elder in the Presbyterian Church of the Redeemer, at Germantown, Philadelphia.

A TRIBUTE BY HON. WAYNE MACVEAGH

It was a snowy day in February, 1849, when my father drove me in a sleigh to Freeland Seminary. It was my first absence from home, and we reached the school during the noon cessation of study and when the students were on the campus engaged in snowballing each other.

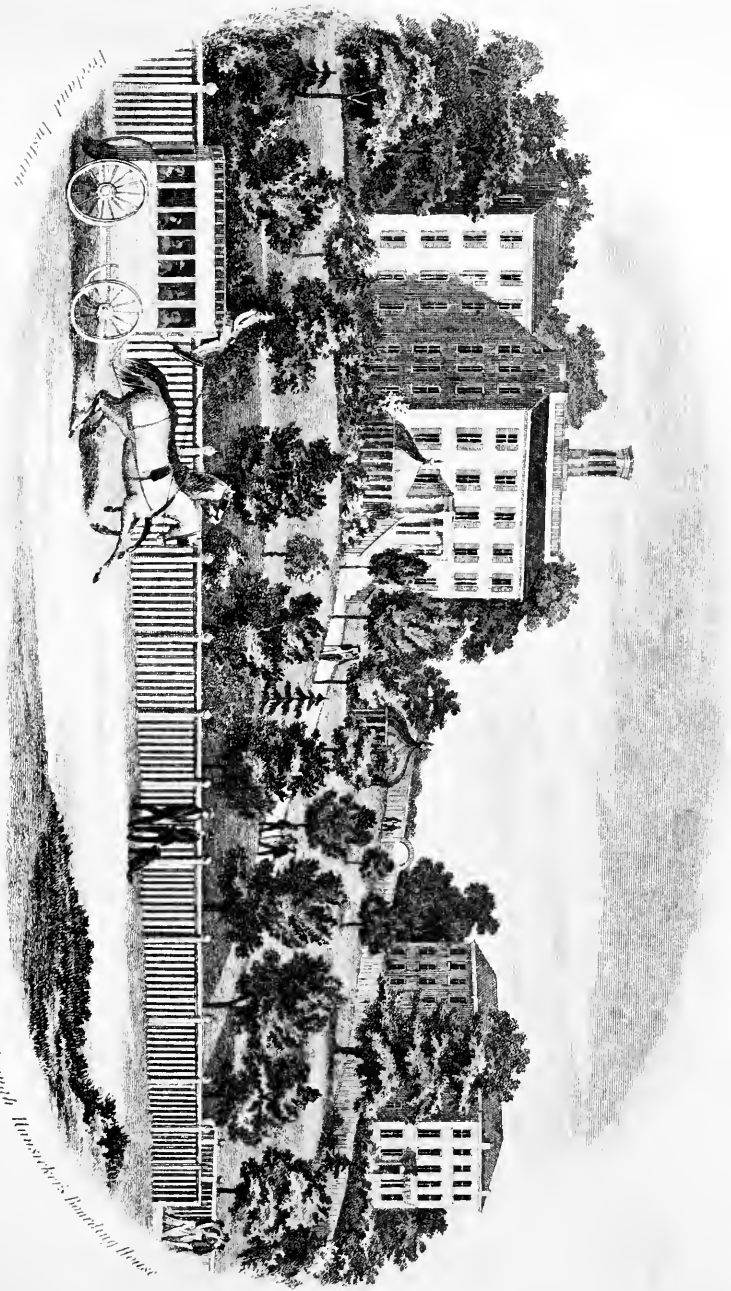

It was my first meeting with Henry A. Hunsicker, the principal of the seminary, and I still distinctly recall the cordial welcome he gave us, and, although dinner was over, very soon he and Mrs. Hunsicker led us to the dining-room and gave us abundant and welcome refreshment after our cold journey, and I never lost the pleasant impression his countenance made upon me at our first meeting.

Those were still days when American boys expected both at home and at school plain living; but I am sure, in lieu of the necessary limitations surrounding the beginning of such an enterprise, it was the happiest possible fortune that it should have been entrusted to the fostering care of Mr. Hunsicker. He had the rare faculty of knowing everything going on in every department without ever seeming to pry into matters; and he and his good wife kept us all not only very comfortable, but also very well satisfied in all respects. No doubt we grumbled occasionally, as boys are apt to do, but I cannot recall a single instance of dissatisfaction with our treatment.

Mr. Hunsicker had also shown great good judgment as well as great liberality of view in securing, as head of the instruction to be given at the seminary, such an exceptional scholar and instructor as Professor Sunderland. Indeed, Mr. Hunsicker and Professor Sunderland in their respective departments were an ideal combination for the work of building up such an institution amidst not particularly encouraging surroundings, and my own case showed their competency for their task.

I was prepared by them to enter the Junior Class at Yale in two years and two months, covering in that comparatively brief period the studies required to enter the Freshman Class as well as those required to enter the two higher classes.

It was, however, the genial and friendly atmosphere of the seminary which made study both attractive and agreeable, and this atmosphere was due in far the largest part to the thoughtful, kindly, and wise supervision of the principal—for every student felt sure he had a friend in Henry A. Hunsicker.

A TRIBUTE BY DR. ADAM H. FETTEROLF

One of his former pupils, himself a well-known educator, who has known him for many years, volunteers to speak of him as follows:

Mr. Hunsicker is a man unusually gifted, having a fine mind, rare tact, great good sense, an even temper and true kindness of heart. As an instructor he was patient, apt to teach, capable of making himself clearly understood, and able to inspire the young men with an ambition to make the best of their opportunities. Those of us who came under his instruction and guidance looked up to him as an exemplar: wherever he led we were willing to follow, and whatever he advised we felt safe in doing or trying to do.

As a disciplinarian he was singularly successful; when offences occurred and had to be investigated, he proved himself a shrewd detective who could not be easily deceived. When he had occasion to reprove or punish, he would do it discreetly, without harshness and rarely in anger.

Mr. Hunsicker was also a pleasing and interesting speaker. His talks at the evening chapel service were always full of sound sense and wise counsel. He was eminently practical, and never wasted time in idle words. His influence over his pupils was great and lasting.

Mr. Hunsicker was always the good citizen. He took a commendable interest in public affairs. He voted on election days; and when he felt that his presence and influence were needed at public meetings, he attended and frequently presided. During the War of the Rebellion he showed his loyalty and patriotism on many occasions. As a neighbor he was kind and always obliging. Those in need of assistance would not apply to him in vain, and he that would borrow of him would rarely be turned away.

A TRIBUTE BY JACOB V. GOTWALTS, ESQ.

What a student of Freeland Seminary of the early fifties, now over seventy years of age, has to say in regard to Rev. Henry A. Hunsicker, the founder and principal of said institution:

From boyhood I have known Mr. Hunsicker, and can therefore testify to his standing, character, and worth. I was a pupil of his for several years; hence take pleasure in giving this little testimonial to his learning, ability, and success as a teacher, as well as to his genial nature and kind disposition of heart as a man.

Through his management "Freeland Seminary" (now "Ursinus College") became one of the best and most prominent in the State.

He devoted his whole time and energies to the education and training of young men, for which he was especially qualified, and was very successful, as hundreds (and I may say thousands) of young and old students of said institution can testify. They can be found scattered all over the world, engaged in every avocation in life and occupying positions of honor and trust. I think I voice the sentiment of all when I say, we all honor, respect, and love our old devoted preceptor.

Mr. Hunsicker, by disposition, nature, and temperament, was especially adapted to manage boys. His great success was because he made himself one of them. He seemed to understand human nature well, and possessed the happy faculty of working himself into the good graces of the boys. He ruled by kindness, not by threats or force. He appealed to the reason and common sense of the boys and thus won their confidence and respect. Nevertheless he was a strict disciplinarian, and had full and absolute control of his pupils. He studied and seemed to understand their character and disposition, and by his genial disposition entered into their sports and enjoyments without in any way losing his standing or dignity among them. Never angered or even ruffled in temper, he would correct the mischievous and obstreperous by appeal to their honor and conscience. We all honored him; we all obeyed him; we all loved him and do so still.

He was a good preceptor, a teacher in the true sense of the word, a thorough master of the subject he taught, and had the faculty of imparting his knowledge so as to be understood by the most obtuse pupil.

He had a big heart, was, and is still, a pure, true Christian gentleman. He is now (1911) over eighty-five years old, and is still active, in good health, and possessed of all his mental faculties as of yore.

Such a man deserves to live to a good, old age. I am sure the old boys wish him a continued long life of health and happiness.

He worked on his father's farm until he was sixteen years old, when he taught public school for two seasons; after which he was appointed assistant teacher in common English in Freeland Seminary,—now Ursinus College,—then under the principalship of Rev. Henry A. Hunsicker. Here he spent about seven years, a close student and an enthusiastic teacher. He held the position of professor of mathematics and history and vice-principal for several years, when he was called to Carversville, Pa., to organize the Excelsior Normal Institute. He was engaged in educational work from 1859 to 1862 and from 1867 until 1884. He received the honorary degree of A.M. from Lafayette College in 1869 and D.D. from Ursinus in 1883.

occupation of farming. Attended common school until the establishment of Freeland Seminary, in 1848, which was founded by his father and was under the principalship of his brother Henry A. In the autumn of 1852 he took charge of a public school in Lower Salford Township, Montgomery County, Pa. In 1854 he became assistant teacher in Freeland Seminary. In the winter of 1855 he married Susan F. Moyer of Franconia Township. In the following spring he entered into partnership with Frank M. Hobson, keeping a general store in Collegetown. After severing his connection he came to Philadelphia in 1858, forming a partnership with his father-in-law, Jonas D. Moyer, in the retail flour and feed business, which continued two years. He then became partner with John Koplín and his brother Abraham Hunsicker, Jr., in the wholesale grain and flour business on Broad below Vine Street, Philadelphia, under the firm name Koplín, Hunsicker & Co., which continued for two years. After dissolution he continued alone, and subsequently bought a large warehouse on South Broad Street opposite Baltimore Depot, where he continued to do business until 1868. Since then he has been a life insurance agent continuously for forty-two years.

He is of commanding appearance, holding optimistic views of life. He early identified himself with church interests, and is still in charge of a large Bible-class in the Harper Memorial Presbyterian Church, Twenty-ninth Street and Susquehanna Avenue, Philadelphia, of which church he is a member and one of its ruling elders. Jared T. Preston, son of — and Mary (Wisner) Preston, was born 15 March, 1836, in Whitpain Township, Montgomery County, Pa.

In his youth he had only the advantages of a district school education. He learned the trade of saddlery and harness making.

Having the desire to acquire knowledge, he applied himself to study; and, although past twenty years of age when he entered Freeland Seminary as a student, he took up a regular course, and soon qualified himself for teaching. He continued his studies during spring and fall terms, and taught school in the winter for several years. He made rapid progress in study, and in the spring of 1858 was appointed teacher of the common branches in Freeland Seminary. He remained connected with the board of teachers in the seminary, being constantly promoted, until 1865. Afterward he opened a private school, which he successfully conducted for several years. In the meantime he pursued a theological course of study, including Latin, Greek, and Hebrew, having in view preparation for the Gospel ministry. At the same time he filled the pulpit of one of the churches at Phoenixville, besides preaching at many of the outposts in the neighborhood of his home.

He was reared a Methodist, and was a local preacher of that denomination for some years; but later joined the Presbyterian Church, passed a satisfactory examination, and was ordained a minister in full standing. On 23 June, 1877, the eve of assuming charge of a congregation, he was taken sick, and died in the prime of life, thus cutting short a career of promised usefulness in the ministry. On 17 May, 1860, he married Mary A., daughter of Rev. Abraham Hunsicker, from which union there were three children, Cyrus (died in infancy), Frank, of Philadelphia, and Elizabeth (wife of Henry W. Spare), Brooklyn, N. Y.

Rev. Joseph H. Hendricks, son of Abraham and Mary (Hunsicker) Hendricks, was born 21 December, 1834, in Upper Providence Township, Montgomery County, Pa.

He was reared on his father's farm. In the spring of 1851 he entered Freeland Seminary (now Ursinus College) under the principalship of Rev. Henry A. Hunsicker. In the fall of 1852 he took charge of a public school in Milford Square, Bucks County, Pa. He attended Freeland Seminary during the summer months, and for four consecutive winters taught in the public schools. In February, 1856, he was appointed to the position of assistant teacher in Freeland Seminary, and two years after he was promoted to teach the higher mathematics and was appointed vice-principal of the institution.

While engaged in these duties he was chosen and elected to the ministry by the members of the Trinity Christian Church, and installed in April, 1862. The duties of the Gospel ministry demanded so much of his time that he was compelled to resign his position as teacher and vice-principal of Freeland Seminary.

The Trinity Christian Church (originally an independent organization) in 1888 was merged into the Reformed Church. The other appointments of the charge are Trinity Church, Skippackville, and Ironbridge Chapel, Rahn's Station.

Mr. Hendricks enjoyed the distinction of having served the same charge longer than any other living pastor in Montgomery County. He officiated at more than one thousand funerals. He was greatly beloved by his own congregation and in much demand outside of his own church. He was a fluent and forcible preacher, speaking entirely extempore, in a rapid, earnest, and convincing manner.

In June, 1881, Ursinus College conferred on him the degree of M.A. and in June, 1897, the degree of D.D.

On 21 October, 1858, he married Catherine, youngest daughter of Rev. Abraham Hunsicker<sup>3</sup>, having five children. He died 21 November, 1905, and is buried in the cemetery of Collegeville connected with the church which he served so long and faithfully.

Horace Mann Hunsicker, fifth son and tenth child of Rev. Abraham and Elizabeth (Alderfer) Hunsicker, was born in the present borough of Collegeville, Pennsylvania, 17 February, 1843. Attended public school one winter, then entered Freeland Seminary, under the principalship of his brother Henry A.; and in 1856 (less than fourteen years of age) was prepared to enter college, but was dissuaded by his father. Taught school as substitute at sixteen years of age, and the following year a full term in Lower Salford Township, Pa. Assistant teacher in Freeland Seminary for one year, and came to Philadelphia in 1861, when eighteen years of age, where he has since resided. Graduated at Crittenden Commercial College (at that time the leading business college in the country) and became book-keeper in 1861, continuing as such until 1868, when he became a partner with his brother Henry A. in the lumber business, until 1875. He has been almost constantly engaged in the wholesale lumber business since that time. On 30 June, 1863, he enlisted for the emergency in the Thirty-fourth Regiment Pennsylvania Militia, Company C, Captain H. H. Fetterolf, and served until his discharge on 10 August, 1863.

On 10 January, 1865, he married Ann Eliza Cosgrove, daughter of William Cosgrove, mayor of the city of Warsaw, Indiana, and for a long time the leading merchant of that city. Three children were born, two dying young. One son, William C., survives (No. 433). His wife died in 1897, and he has since resided with his son's family at Seventeenth and Race Sts., Phila.

Possessing an innate inclination for study and figures, he was early at the head of his classes, and in his early manhood ranked as an expert in book-keeping because of his correct and methodical system. The same carefulness and methods are now showing good results in an established business, in which he takes great delight in his latter days, striving to do no more than he can control himself and having the confidence of his customers, both buyers and shippers. Having no liking for public affairs, he never sought or held any political office whatever. Modest and retiring in disposition, he is consequently but little known outside of his home circle and his business friends, of whom he has hosts. For ten years past he has had his offices in the Fidelity Building, Broad Street above Arch, Philadelphia.

He is a member of the Franklin Institute and the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce.*

district attorney for Montgomery County, and served with marked ability for three years. He was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention of 1872-1873 and took an active part in the deliberations of that body. While a member of the Constitutional Convention, he introduced a section providing for a review of county criminal trials by the Supreme Court of the State. This was defeated by two votes, but its importance was so obvious that it was afterwards made a law by the Legislature. In 1884 he was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at Chicago which nominated Grover Cleveland, and on other occasions was honored with the confidence of his party associates. In 1886 he was the Democratic candidate for President Judge of Montgomery County, but was defeated with the entire ticket. He was a trustee of the State Hospital for the Insane, having been originally appointed by Governor Pattison. In addition to his large practice he was vice-president of the Montgomery Insurance, Trust, and Safe Deposit Company, of Norristown, and he took an active interest in the development of many laudable industrial enterprises in the community.

His widow, Margaret Schall Hunsicker, is descended from a prominent Huguenot family that was driven from France by the troubles resulting from the revocation of the Edict of Nantes. Her mother was Caroline Trexler, a descendant of Captain John Lesher, a member of the first Constitutional Convention held in Carpenters' Hall, Philadelphia, in 1776, and who afterward served in the war of the Revolution. ### ADAM H. FETTEROLF.

Adam H. Fetterolf, Ph.D., LL.D., late president of Girard College, son of Gideon and Elizabeth (Hunsicker) Fetterolf, was born 24 November, 1841, in Perkiomen Township, Montgomery County, Pa. His academic training was acquired at Freeland Seminary, then under the management of Rev. Henry A. Hunsicker. After completing his course and teaching for a time in the public schools, he connected himself with the institution as professor of mathematics, and subsequently purchased Mr. Hunsicker's interest and became proprietor and principal. He conducted the institution very successfully for five years, when the building and grounds were purchased for Ursinus College.

Professor Fetterolf then associated himself with Rev. Dr. Wells in the ownership and management of Andalusia Academy in Bucks County.

After the death of Dr. Wells in 1871, he assumed the entire charge, and continued at the head of the academy for the next five years. In 1880 he was elected by the Board of City Trusts to fill the chair of vice-president of Girard College. At the death of President Allen, two years later, Professor Fetterolf was chosen to succeed him. He held the position and discharged the manifold duties for twenty-seven years, with the confidence of the board and the approbation of the public.

The government of Girard College demands high and rather peculiar qualifications. The position of the president is one of great responsibility, standing as he does in loco parentis to over fifteen hundred orphan boys, the representative head of the greatest individual charity on the continent.

Professor Fetterolf possessed the charm of a genial, quick, and well-balanced character, a pleasing address, an impressive presence, and that subtle faculty which wins the confidence of boys. He was the fourth president of the college. His abilities have had numerous recognitions from the faculties of other colleges. Lafayette conferred the degrees of A.M. and Ph.D. and Delaware College the title of LL.D.

J. QUINCY HUNSICKER.

John Quincy Hunsicker, Esq., is one of the most prominent members of the Philadelphia Bar. This position he has attained by the studious employment of his abilities and by consecutive labor, which is a talent in itself. He resides on Wynnefield Avenue, at Wynnefield, a beautiful and elevated suburb, and with his son, J. Quincy Hunsicker, Jr., Esq., has his offices in the Crozer Building, 1420 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa. He is a tall, fine-looking man of good figure, and, while dignified, has a genial and attractive manner.

Mr. Hunsicker was born in Upper Providence Township, Montgomery County, Pa., in the year 1844, and in 1848 the family moved to the Morgan farm in Lower Providence Township, near the old village of Evansburg. I knew him and his family and a number of his relatives intimately during my boyhood and earlier life, and still know a number of his relatives.

Some one has facetiously written of an admired friend, that he never showed better sense than when he selected his ancestors; but it has been more seriously said that we are the result of their virtues and vices: certain it is that the raw material of our minds and souls is determined by heredity from our parents and ancestors; then the glorious work of education supervenes.

Mr. Hunsicker's forebears were a steady, industrious people, intelligent and filled with hard common sense, possessed with firm conviction—not easily disturbed—on all important questions, and patriots to the core. Men and women of character,—character, which, as Emerson truly says, is higher than intellect. This I know personally of those I knew, particularly his father and mother. I cannot resist saying here, that his mother and her sister, Mrs. Rebecca Casselberry, were two of the best women I ever knew.

He is the son of Garret (Detweiler) Hunsicker and Elizabeth Wigton Morgan, and a direct descendant of Valentine Hunsicker on his father's side, and on his mother's side of Daniel Morgan and Jane Wigton. Daniel Morgan, his grandfather, was the son of Andrew Morgan, who was the son of Andrew Morgan, a native of Wales, who settled in Hatfield Township, Montgomery County, upon his arrival in this country.

Jane Wigton, his grandmother, was the daughter of Samuel Wigton and Elizabeth Hughes. Samuel Wigton was born 1739, and was a first lieutenant in Fourth Battalion, Bucks County, Pennsylvania, Militia, during the Revolution. He served on the staff of General Washington; was present, it is said, at the battles of Brandywine, Germantown, and Monmouth, and was at Valley Forge Encampment. His commission is dated 6 May, 1777. He was the son of John Wigton (of Scotch-Irish origin), of New Britain Township, Bucks County. Captain James Wigton, a brother of Lieutenant Wigton, was killed at the Battle of Wyoming, 3 July, 1778, and his family perished in the subsequent massacre.

Elizabeth Hughes (Wigton) was the daughter of Christopher and Jean Hughes, of Bedminster Township. The former was the son of James Hughes, of the said township, of English origin. Christopher Hughes was a private soldier in Third Battalion, Bucks County, Pennsylvania, Militia, having enlisted 10 August, 1775. This makes the subject of our sketch a direct descendant of two Revolutionary characters.

Mr. Hunsicker attended the common schools of the county and Rodenbaugh's select school, Lower Providence, one term, prior to entering the army. He enlisted on 4 August, 1862, as a volunteer, for the term of nine months, in a company composed mainly of young men of Lower Providence Township and adjoining districts, organized by Dr. William Wetherill, and known as "Wetherill Blues." On 11 August, 1862, he was mustered into the United States service as a private, in Company "I," Captain Fred. B. Shunk, One Hundred and Twenty-ninth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, Colonel Jacob G. Frick, commanding. The regiment rendezvoused at Harrisburg until 16 August, 1862, when it left for Washington and encamped near Alexandria, and was later assigned to Tyler's Brigade, Humphrey's Division, Fifth Corps, Army of the Potomac. The regiment was engaged at Centreville, Va. (Second Bull Run); was on the subsequent march through Maryland, by Frederick City, South Mountain, and Sharpsburg, arriving at Antietam, after a forced march from Frederick City, on the early morning following the first day's battle. Although under fire during the fight, was not called into active conflict; joined in the pursuit of the enemy, took part in the conflict which occurred at the crossing at Shepherdstown, where he became one of a volunteer squad of sharpshooters posted on the banks of the Potomac during the effort made to cross after the enemy, in which the One Hundred and Eighteenth Pennsylvania (Corn Exchange) Regiment was badly cut up. Before the army started on the march leading up to Fredericksburg, he was taken ill with typhoid fever, and did not join the regiment again until after the Battle of Fredericksburg, in which the regiment participated. He served with the regiment after his return continuously; was in Burnside's "Mud March" and Chancellorsville Campaign; was wounded in battle at Chancellorsville 3 May, 1863, where the Fifth Corps took the place of the Eleventh Corps which had broken and fallen back; was discharged at Harrisburg 18 May, 1863; re-enlisted at Norristown, 2 July, 1863, in the service of the State, to serve during the existing emergency, Captain Fred. R. Hawes, Company "B," Independent Cavalry Battalion, Pennsylvania Volunteer Militia, Lieutenant-Colonel Richard F. Mason, commanding; was located in Cumberland Valley on the banks of the Potomac, and when the army moved south was attached to Twentieth Cavalry, John E. Wyncoop, commanding. He was finally discharged 21 August, 1863; then re-enlisted for the war in the Eighth Pennsylvania Cavalry, but was rejected on account of impaired health due to exposure and hardships in the service. After that he taught school at Evansburg and at Penn Square, Montgomery County, in the winter time, and attended Freeland Seminary (now Ursinus College) during the summer months, having educated himself after his return from the war.

He began the study of the law in March, 1867, in the City of Philadelphia, in the office of Theodore Cuyler, then general counsel for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, and one of the great lawyers of this country; attended law lectures at the University of Pennsylvania, and was admitted to the bar 21 March, 1869.

Mr. Hunsicker was married 26 June, 1873, to Mary Elton Stiles (a young woman of singular beauty and a devoted wife and mother), who died 21 December, 1879, and has two children, Florence H., who married Benjamin Peckham, now residing at Providence, R. I., and J. Quincy, Jr., a member of the bar of the State of Pennsylvania and a graduate of Haverford College and the Law Department of the University of Pennsylvania.

On 22 August, 1888, he married his present wife, Marie Emma Hellerman, a dignified and handsome woman.

As I have said, I knew Mr. Hunsicker when we were boys and youths; I also was his fellow pupil at the Evansburg school and Freeland Seminary; and when I read law I was at first registered with him, though subsequently a student of the late Attorney-General Brewster, whose office adjoined that of Mr. Cuyler; upon my admission, Mr. Hunsicker and I took offices together and continued so for twenty-one years.

He built up his practice by continued consecutive study and hard work. To his capacity for study he brought a keen perception and a correct judgment; thus, whatever he did he did well; there was the stamp of thoroughness upon it. Such men must succeed. He always knew his case both as to the facts and the law. We tried numbers of cases together, but I always felt myself very much the junior. He had the admirable faculty of maintaining that perfect poise between the court and the client; fidelity to the one, and faithfulness to the other; and it was not long before opposing counsel learned that he was a very dangerous opponent.

Besides being a ready nisi prius lawyer, his grasp of facts, sound judgment, and knowledge of the law made him noted as a counselor in those many serious matters of business which every successful lawyer transacts in his own office; thus he gradually gathered around him as clients men and corporations of large business interests, and has been and is being associated in important cases with other lawyers of the very first rank. He now enjoys a large and remunerative practice of the highest class, which he handles as only a man of ability, judgment, and character can; and I hope the son may take the father for his prototype.

I cannot close this short sketch without paying a tribute to Mr. Hunsicker as a man and a friend. I have known many men, but never had a truer friend; sincere, unaffected, faithful; respectful of the opinions, careful of the feelings of others; sturdily but not dogmatically defending his own views; charitable and long-suffering as to others' failings; slow to anger, quick to forgive; such a man must have (as he has) a large circle of social friends. He belongs to a number of associations, including Post 2, G.A.R., the Union League, Law Association of Philadelphia, and the Pennsylvania Bar Association.

ROBERT MELVILLE HUNSICKER.

The subject of this sketch, the son of Garret D. and Elizabeth W. Hunsicker, was born at Evansburg, Lower Providence Township, Montgomery Co., Pa., on a farm belonging to his grandfather Morgan, now owned by D. Hearn Casselberry. About a year later the family moved to Perkiomen Township.

He was educated in the public schools, Freeland Seminary, the academic department of Ursinus College; then, after serving as a teacher in the public schools, in the preparatory department of Bucknell University (1876 to 1878), the college (1878 to 1882), from which he was graduated with first honors; and Crozer Theological Seminary (1882 to 1885).

After his graduation from the seminary, he accepted a call to the pastorate of four Baptist churches in Central Pennsylvania, and was ordained to the ministry at Moreland, Lycoming County, 30 July, 1885. In this first pastorate, sixty-seven persons were added to the churches he served.

On 30 November, 1885, he married Laura M. Bower, of Lewisburg, Pa. No children live to bless the household. Mrs. Hunsicker, because of her sympathetic nature and genial personality, wisdom, and lofty interest in the Master's work, has always been a genuine helpmate to her husband in his labors.

In December, 1887, work was taken up with the church at East Smithfield, Bradford County, where in three years and a half he baptized a large number, led in the building of a fine and commodious parsonage, and made provision for the removal of a long-standing debt. This was followed by a successful pastorate of three and a half years at Brookville, Jefferson County, where his labors were again crowned with large accessions to the church.

On 1 January, 1895, he began a ten years and three months' pastorate at Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia. Concerning the work here a friend says: "By his exceptional ability in elevating the church's conception of financial responsibility, he succeeded in placing his church in the very first rank, in the great Philadelphia Baptist Association, for liberality and business standing. Under the inspiration of his leadership, the church gave with a liberality that was truly inspiring." The following is quoted from a resolution of appreciation adopted by the church March 29, 1905: "His teaching of high ideals of service has led us toward conditions favoring spiritual life and church activity. His personal help in developing good plans of systematic giving has done much to enable us to carry on our work by the contribution of the cheerful giver, and take pleasure in spreading the Gospel in home and foreign fields."

Relinquishing this charge, against the earnest protest of the church, he went, 1 April, 1905, to Galeton, Potter County, Pa., a rapidly growing industrial town, the church having a fine building, but in "a deplorable financial condition." "Through sane and efficient methods introduced by Mr. Hunsicker," writes one familiar with the conditions, "the church at the end of his pastorate was on a firm financial basis and in a position to handle successfully its material affairs. The church also made marked spiritual development and was left better in every way."

On 1 January, 1908, his labors were begun in the Baptist Church of Mansfield, Tioga Co., a church of 350 members and having a large attendance from the faculty and student body of the Normal School. The first year in pastorate witnessed the removal of a large debt which had hung upon the people many years. There were also greatly increased missionary offerings.

At no time in his ministerial career has Mr. Hunsicker sought a charge, and every call to which he has responded has been unanimously given.

He has ably served his denomination on various boards of management, including nine years as representative for Pennsylvania on the International Board of Baptist Young People's Union of America.

To aid in the preparation of this sketch, a number of ministers, prominent in the denomination, have been asked to give "impressions." From these we select a few sentences. One writes: "One marked feature of his ministry is the clear, inspiring interpretation of the Bible. Few men can in a few words throw light on the exact meaning of the Scriptures as can Mr. Hunsicker. It is the art of 'opening the Scriptures.'" Another writes: "As a preacher and pastor he is beyond the usual average. His independence of thought and action and his fidelity to duty are especially noteworthy. Mr. Hunsicker is not inclined to do things without thought; but when he makes up his mind that a given course is right, he always follows that course to the very end. He is a leader by example as well as precept." Another, writing concerning the pastorate at Chestnut Hill, says: "There was in him the grace of proportion. He was faithful to the trusts of home and society; faithful to the trusts of his church. His mission was not to destroy, but to build. A master builder was he. His ministry was far-reaching in its influence. He attained to greatness—the greatness of usefulness."

His work in the ministry has been made valuable because backed by a life that is positive, intense, industrious, systematic, conscientious, noble, and balanced. It has been especially marked as that of a leader by the presence of three things: his ability to inject business, sanity, and enthusiasm into the work of the church; his ability to touch the daily interests of the individual members of the church, and to serve them nobly in an unusual degree; and his preaching of an intelligible, dignified, manly, and vigorous Christianity.

ABRAHAM D. FETTEROLF

Abraham D. Fetterolf was born near Collegeville, Montgomery County, Pa., June 4, 1850. His parents were the late Esther and Gideon Fetterolf. The Fetterolfs were one of the good old Pennsylvania German families given to agriculture, and originally of Berks County. Mrs. Esther Fetterolf (née Hunsicker) was a daughter of the late Mennonite Bishop, Abram Hunsicker<sup>3</sup>, the founder of the Borough of Collegeville, of Freeland Seminary (now Ursinus College), of the Christian Society (now Trinity Reformed Church), and (with Professor Sunderland) the founder of Pennsylvania Female College. Mr. Fetterolf has two younger brothers, A. Curtin Fetterolf, of New York City, now general freight agent of the International Mercantile Marine Steamship Company, and Horace G. Fetterolf, a manufacturer of carpets and Wilton rugs at Wayne Junction, Philadelphia. Gideon Fetterolf, the father, was twice married, his first wife being Elizabeth, daughter of the Mennonite Bishop John Hunsicker, the eldest brother of Bishop Abram Hunsicker. By Gideon Fetterolf's first marriage, Abraham D. has two brothers still living, Captain H. H. Fetterolf, a veteran of the Civil War and ex-member of the Pennsylvania Legislature, and Dr. A. H. Fetterolf, LL.D., who was president of Girard College for twenty-nine years. Mr. Fetterolf never received a college education. The busy practical world has always been to him a great school, in which by close observation and varied experiences he learned the higher and more valuable lessons of real life. He attended for several years Freeland Seminary during the principalship of Rev. H. A. Hunsicker and his brother A. H. Fetterolf. Mr. Fetterolf at the age of sixteen years became a public school-teacher, and for several years followed that calling.

When he attained his majority, he went to Philadelphia to engage in mercantile pursuits. From 1871 to 1873 he was a lumber inspector; and then formed a partnership with a young friend in the flour and feed business. From 1887 to 1890, he was a member of the firm of the Roberts Machine Company, Colledgeville. In 1882 he was elected justice of the peace of Upper Providence Township, Montgomery County, and served as such for over eight years, resigning to accept a county office. In 1885 he was appointed transcribing clerk of the House of Representatives and the following session was promoted to speaker's clerk, serving in this capacity during the incumbency of his boyhood friend, Hon. Henry K. Boyer. In 1899 he was elected journal clerk, and in 1893 resident clerk of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives. In the session of 1895 he was elected chief clerk of the House of Representatives. Notwithstanding the fact that the wing of the party with which he was more closely identified had lost the chief control, yet so valuable were his services in the machinery of law-making that he was again elected resident clerk in 1897, and served in this capacity most acceptably until the beginning of the year 1900, when he resigned his offices. In 1886 and again in 1896 he was a delegate to the Republican State Convention. In 1890 he was nominated by his party for the office of register of wills of Montgomery County, but failed of an election by 77 votes, while the Republican candidate for Governor was beaten in the county over 1300 votes. In 1891 he was deputy clerk of the courts of Montgomery County.

In 1892 Mr. Fetterolf was unanimously elected chairman of the Republican County Committee. In this position he served acceptably.

He resigned the chairmanship of the county committee to accept the secretaryship of the Republican State Committee, and served as such during the exciting campaign of 1893 and 1894. Since 1889 he has been secretary of the Perkiomen Valley Mutual Fire Insurance Company, one of the most successful mutual companies in the State. For some years he was a director of the National Bank of Schwenksville; is a director of the Times Publishing Company, Norristown; and also director of Ursinus College, Colledgeville, Pa.; served a term as burgess of the Borough of Collegeville; was secretary of Warren Lodge, No. 310, F. and A. M., for ten years, and is at present treasurer of the lodge; was master of the lodge in 1880; is a member of Hutchinson Commandery, No. 32, Knights Templar, Norristown, and a charter member of Camp 267, P. O. S. of A.

Early in life he joined what is now Trinity Reformed Church of Collegeville, and has been a generous contributor to all its interests.

When the Collegeville National Bank was started, he was elected its president, and is at present filling the responsible position. This work now engages his earnest attention.

Mr. Fetterolf was twice married. In 1872 he married Sallie E., daughter of Rev. Henry N. Graybill, a minister in the River Brethren Church and they had four children: Clement G., who died when twenty years of age; Horace M., who graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1907 and is at present holding a responsible position with the Patterson-Sargent Company, a manufacturing firm with principal office in New York City; the other children died in infancy. He was married the second time to Bertha C., only daughter of the late Rev. John R. and Mary Prizer Kookon. Mrs. Fetterolf's father was a minister of the Reformed Church, and was one of the founders of the Reformed Church of the Ascension, Norristown. Her mother was the daughter of the late Henry Prizer, the first principal of Washington Hall Boarding-School in the historic Borough of Trappe.

Mr. Fetterolf is perfectly at home among his fellow-citizens, and enjoys to a high degree the esteem and confidence of those who know him best. Personally he is modest, unobtrusive, peaceable, and courteous, and whatever success he has had in life may be attributed largely to those qualities as well as his probity.

He was born at Collegeville, Pa., 16 October, 1860. Attended Freeland Seminary, receiving a good education, and in April, 1876, at the age of sixteen, entered the employ of Peter Wright & Sons, in Philadelphia, who were then agents of the American Steamship Line. In 1880 he was transferred to their New York office. In 1895 he accepted the position of manager of the Brooklyn Wharf and Warehouse Company, and remained there five years. This company owned fifty piers and nearly all the warehouses along the water front in Brooklyn. In 1900 he accepted the New York agency of the Leyland Steamship Line, operating large passenger and freight steamers weekly between New York and Liverpool, England.

In 1903 the International Mercantile Marine Company was formed by Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan. He was appointed assistant general freight traffic manager, but in two years was promoted to general freight traffic manager, with headquarters at New York.

The steamship lines composing this company are as follows: White Star Line, Leyland Line, Dominion Line, Red Star Line, American Line, and Atlantic Transport Line, controlling one hundred and forty ocean steamships with an aggregate tonnage of over one million gross tons. These lines maintain service from Montreal, Portland, Me., Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, New Orleans, and Galveston to the foreign ports of Liverpool, London, Bristol, Southampton, Antwerp, Havre, Bremen, Manchester, also Gibraltar, Naples and Genoa in the Mediterranean.

His duties are to decide the freight policy of the company, and the freight agents throughout the United States and Canada report to him.

Some of the finest types of both passenger and freight steamers belong to these lines. The largest steamers of the world are now being built and will be ready in the spring of 1911. They will be named Olympic and Titania, 860 feet long and 45,000 tons each.

He now resides at Upper Montclair, New Jersey, having a wife and two children.

He then formed a partnership with Arthur Danby and purchased the Wilton carpet and rug plant of McCallum & McCallum, situated at Wayne Junction. Several years after, he purchased his partner's interest, and has since conducted the business on his own account and has largely increased it.

He is a popular and well-known manufacturer, and his products are to be found in the best and largest establishments throughout the entire United States.

He is a director in one of the oldest and best-known banks of Philadelphia, a member of the Union League and other prominent clubs, and treasurer of All Hallows' Episcopal Church, Wyncote, where he now resides.

Several years ago he purchased a number of acres in this beautiful suburb of Philadelphia, and has erected thereon a large Colonial dwelling. This property is now one of the handsomest in the vicinity, furnished throughout with rare taste, and has all the modern conveniences for substantial comfort.

With close attention to business, prompt and faithful in the discharge of duty in every business and social relation, he has established an enviable reputation that reflects a character worthy of emulation by the young men of the present age.

He remained with the firm of Hunsicker Brothers until they went out of business some years later. In 1881 he again associated himself with his father, then in the lumber business, and later organized the Pennsylvania Lumber Company, of which he was the manager until 1888, when, his health having failed, he changed his residence from Philadelphia to Denver, Colorado, where he afterward lived, engaged in the real estate and investment business, as well as the erection of many of the finest buildings in Denver.

H. ALVIN HUNSICKER.

H. Alvin Hunsicker was born at Collegeville, Pa., on 20 September, 1864. He is the youngest son of Henry A. Hunsicker by his first wife, Mary Weinberger. He was born in what is now the main building of Ursinus College while his father was still principal of the institution, which was then called Freeland Seminary. Born at a period when his father was deeply engrossed in educational work, he seemed to inherit a natural taste and inclination for books and learning. He received his education in his native town; was graduated from Ursinus College at the age of nineteen in 1884. While at college he developed into a fluent speaker and a ready debater, a trait that grew stronger in after-life and one that served him well in his subsequent successful business career.

After leaving college he went to Philadelphia and accepted a position with his father in the lumber business. Leaving the lumber business in 1892, he became the manager of a trade paper published in the interests of manufacturers. For seven years he remained in this position, during which period he came in contact with the leading industrial concerns in the country. The valuable experience gained by associating with many of the leading business men in the United States during these seven years, added to his natural business ability, resulted in giving him, early in life, an enlarged commercial experience which served as a foundation for his later success in the business world.

In 1899 he relinquished newspaper work and became the treasurer of the Keystone Oil-cloth Company of Norristown, Pa. This concern had a small capital and in point of production was the smallest of its class in the country.

Mr. Hunsicker, by his able management, doubled the business in two years' time and attracted sufficient attention to entitle him to a seat in the council of the larger oil-cloth manufacturers.

In 1901, during the period of combination in all business lines, a successful effort was made by Mr. Hunsicker to combine the largest oil-cloth concerns into one large company. He secured options on six of the largest and most successful oil-cloth plants in the United States, which, with his own concern, were combined by him, with the assistance of a western banker, into the Standard Oil-cloth Company of New Jersey, with offices in New York City. This company secured a charter and started in business in July, 1901. It had a capital of $8,000,000 and to-day (1911) is the largest of its class in the world. Mr. Hunsicker, in addition to becoming a director and large stockholder, became the secretary of the new company at the start, and in 1906 its general manager as well, which position he still holds. The company has been remarkably successful and has doubled its business during the period that Mr. Hunsicker has managed its affairs. The company, while holding a commanding position in the trade, has in no sense a monopoly, as there are a number of independent concerns, and the competition in the industry is of the keenest nature. Its success is due to the progressive methods adopted by Mr. Hunsicker and his associates.

In 1889 Mr. Hunsicker married Helen Theresa Boice, who was born in Chester County, Pa. Miss Boice had a remarkable talent for music and had, in addition, an exceptionally good and well-trained soprano voice. They met on the concert stage. Mr. Hunsicker has always been interested in music and is the possessor of a good baritone voice.

Since 1903 Mr. Hunsicker has resided in Clifton Park, Weehawken, on the New Jersey Palisades, where he built a fine home. He at once became interested in local affairs, and was instrumental in organizing a Civic Betterment Association, of which he is still the president. He has taken a prominent part in the politics of New Jersey, and in each campaign has spoken from the platform for the Republican Party. He was a presidential elector in 1908.

In club life Mr. Hunsicker has been prominent. He is an exceptionally good story-teller and after-dinner speaker. He is a Mason, a member of the Hamilton Club of New Jersey, the Automobile Club of New Jersey, the Englewood Country Club, the Touring Club of America, the Sphinx Club of New York, the Pennsylvania Society, and is the treasurer of the Arkwright Club, the leading dry-goods club of New York. He is an enthusiastic golfer and spends considerable time automobiling. Travelling has been a pastime of Mr. Hunsicker, and he has visited most of the countries of Europe, South America, and the West Indies.

Mr. Hunsicker inherited a good, strong, hardy constitution, and has never permitted his arduous business cares to injure his health. In personal appearance he is said to resemble his grandfather, Rev. Abram Hunsicker, being about the same height and having the same well-knit and sturdy physique.

Those of us who mingle in the business life of New York admire Mr. Hunsicker not only for his many fine traits of character, but also for the position he holds in the business community at large. The products of the various enterprises in which he is interested are sold all over the world. He is the secretary and general manager of the Standard Oil-cloth Company, president of the Sanatile Company, and president of the Meritas Cotton Mills of Columbus, Ga., and is a stockholder in various other enterprises. He is a good type of the modern man of affairs, and has in his make-up the elements of success so necessary to the merchant of to-day by virtue of the broader and more comprehensive plan of action with regard to all commercial enterprises.

HAROLD S. HULL.

New York, January 11, 1911.

MRS. ALVIN HUNSICKER.

Helen Theresa Boice was born in Chester County, Pa., from Scotch-Irish parents. She was married to Alvin Hunsicker June 19, 1889. In early life she showed a great talent for music. She was a church organist at the age of thirteen. Her musical education was very thorough. She studied piano and composition at the Philadelphia Musical Academy, at which institution she afterward became a teacher of singing at the age of twenty-one. She studied music extensively under the greatest masters in Europe, having made fourteen trips abroad for that purpose. Madam Marchesi, the celebrated teacher in Paris, once stated, "Mrs. Hunsicker not only has the finest voice that ever came to me from America, but she is the best musician as well." Her American teachers were Mr. Frederic S. Law, of Philadelphia, Madam Cappianni and Frank Herbert Tubb, of New York City.

After her marriage she was known in her profession as Mrs. Helen Boice-Hunsicker, a name that stands in the first rank of American singers. In the interpretation of songs and ballads Mrs. Hunsicker has gained a wide reputation. Her song recitals have been a marked feature in her musical career. It is nothing unusual for her to sing from memory twenty-five to thirty songs in one program and to give two or three different programs a week. She is a great lover of opera and was offered what no doubt would have been a fine career in grand opera, but, on account of the objections of her family, she never sang on the operatic stage, although she has studied and is thoroughly able to sing many of the leading soprano parts. Mrs. Hunsicker has a remarkably fine soprano voice and in addition has a very thorough knowledge of music, to which she adds a musical temperament far beyond many other gifted singers. Her song recitals were a feature in the musical life of Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, and other American cities, even as far west as California. No singer of ballads ever received finer criticisms from America's leading critics.

During the St. Louis Exposition Mrs. Hunsicker was appointed by the National Commission as one of the Board of Lady Managers.

Mrs. Hunsicker has travelled extensively and has visited Europe many times. She is the possessor of an active, alert, and progressive disposition; in other words, she must always be doing something. Many a young, struggling musician has thanked Mrs. Hunsicker for encouragement and aid.

At the present time Mrs. Hunsicker is interested in things musical in New York City, particularly in the Woman's Philharmonic Society, of which she is an officer. She no longer sings in public, except for some charitable cause, and they indeed are fortunate who are privileged to hear her. She is not a club woman, but a worker in all things musical, both as artist and patron.

TWENTIETH CENTURY RESPONSIBILITIES.

An address delivered by Alvin Hunsicker, of New York City, at the Hunsicker Family Reunion held at Collegetville, Pa., August 11, 1910.

On March 24, in the year 1681, William Penn, by virtue of a loan of £15,000 made by his father to the English monarch, received from Charles II of England a grant known as Penn-sylvania. Under the terms of the agreement, Penn was the supreme governor, with power to make laws, and was given full authority to run the new colony to suit himself. Penn's mother was a Dutch lady, and his father an admiral in the English navy. In early life, Penn was converted to Quakerism, and it is said of him that he took off his hat to no man, including the king. His puritanical ideas, his religious writings, and his turbulent debates landed him in jail on several occasions, but he never forsook his religious ideals. It was but natural, therefore, that upon receiving his grant from the English king, he should have gathered about him a band of free-thinking and free-acting emigrants and settled in America. Penn preached his doctrines not alone to the English but to the Dutch, the Swiss, and the Germans, and when he decided to come to America he brought with him emigrants from England, Holland, Switzerland, and Germany. With these sturdy sons of Europe, who were prompted, like the Puritans, to forsake home and friends, to be emancipated from the intolerant thralldom of religious persecution, seeking liberty of conscience and freedom, there came to the wild shores of America in the year 1717 one Valentine Hunsicker, a sturdy youth from Zurich, Switzerland. He was the first of the family in America, and he showed his good judgment in settling in what is now Montgomery County, Pa., one of the garden spots of the new world. His wisdom with regard to his choice of a home is borne out by the fact that the lands settled by him and his family are still in large part owned and occupied by his many descendants.

The early Hunsickers were men of industry and frugality. They were farmers who worked hard and prospered accordingly; they were men of cast-iron honesty and men of honor, and those of us to-day who lay claim to the family name have good cause to be proud of the heritage we received, for our ancestors were strong, able, and conscientious men who did their part nobly in the development of the new world. They worked hard and many of them died for their adopted country.

The maternal side of the family can be traced back to the year 1550, when our forefathers were prominent in the civil government of Holland, being burgomasters in some of the principal cities and leaders in governmental affairs.

The descendants of Valentine Hunsicker eventually located in that part of Pennsylvania now represented by the counties of Montgomery, Bucks, and Lancaster.

Our early ancestors belonged to the cord-wood age, before the power of steam had been discovered, when the farmer made nearly everything he used, from the clothes worn by his family to the soap and candles and carpets. He raised his own mutton, while his wife carded their own wool, spun their own yarn, wove their own cloth, and made their own clothes. A girl of ten had a home-made dress with tucks in it, and the tucks were let out each year as she grew taller. Hobble-skirts and Merry Widow hats were not yet in demand. Steam-power and the advent of the factory changed the age of barter to one of trade. Farming became a process of plowing and butter- and cheese-making. The creamery finally brought farming to the simple process of plowing, sowing, and reaping. One of the chief troubles to-day with regard to the high cost of living is that farm life lacks the varied industries it once included. Coal and steam very materially changed the condition of the farmer. A ton of coal stands for 1300 horses for a day of ten hours, but a factory will consume one hundred tons a day, equal to using up 130,000 horse-power. The Pennsylvania or New York Central Railroads will use 10,000 tons a day on their engines, so that the superintendent of motive power every day drives thirteen millions of horses. Farming has not been able to compete with manufactures and commerce. They have had steam and the farmer has not. In the early days, our ancestors did not even have the advantage of manufactures and commerce. They had to dig things out for themselves, and that is why they were such a strong, self-reliant, and robust body of citizens.

In those early days, however, there was not the opportunity to develop the same sort of citizenship as there is to-day. A man then could not equip himself for the battle of life with even a superficial education, much less a technical one. What our ancestors lacked in the enlarged intellectual equipment that goes with the average citizen to-day, was more than made up in their ideal home life. They were good fathers and good mothers. They reared large families, and their home life as a whole was better calculated to develop the domestic traits of the ideal citizen of which we read so much these days. The olden days, therefore, had their advantages as well as their disadvantages. The wonderful opportunities of the present time, however, were not dreamed of, because they were impossible. The struggle of our forefathers for a place in the history of the country was, therefore, much harder than is ours, and their victory, therefore, is all the more praiseworthy. They strove to subdue a new country and were necessarily forced to use weapons of the crudest nature.

We are called upon to face the problems of this wonderful twentieth century, and our weapons are of our own choosing. We nevertheless have, as did they, our part to bear in the struggle of life, and our duty to our country and to our posterity is no less than was theirs, but our responsibility is greater because our opportunity is greater.

Our early ancestors hewed down the forest and tilled the stump-dotted clearings, but these have given way to fertile fields and to busy towns and hustling cities. The farmer has developed into the teacher, the preacher, the merchant, the lawyer, and a hundred other callings which in the old days, to a large extent, did not exist. The early settler, however, did his part. He shared the burden of the community; in other words, he was useful, he did things, they were done in his way, but they nevertheless were done. No better eulogy can any man have than that it may be said of him, "He was useful; he took up his part in the struggle of life and left the world better because he lived in it." The twentieth century has no time for a man who does not work, who is not useful; it matters not whether he falters through fear, incompetency, or a lack of desire. The modern way is the busy way, the useful way. Man got away from the monkey by his power to make and use tools. He goes back to the ape when his hands have to be cased in kid gloves and his brain is indifferent toward honorable and useful labor. If life in the twentieth century means anything, it means energy, activity, and usefulness. The world should be better for our having been in it, and we should regard it as a glorious privilege to take part in the progress of modern achievement.

There is no excuse to-day for the man who lacks intelligence. We do not mean, that much as it is to be desired, every man should receive a collegiate education. We do mean, however, that there are so many avenues now open that no man need go without mental training in some particular direction. The Government will teach us how to become skilled farmers. The trade schools and technical institutions, the free libraries, and a hundred and one other avenues are now open to those who want to become skilled in some particular direction. We must be skilled in some one thing to succeed, and "what is worth doing is worth doing well." In fact, it is the modern way, the only way to succeed. We must know, and, as the old proverb puts it, "Knowledge is power." The twentieth century demands the skilled man, the trained man, no matter in what walk of life he may be, and his success will be in proportion to the skill and intelligence that he manifests in his accepted vocation.

The modern man must be a healthful man. These are strenuous times, demanding not only brains but brawn. The strain on the man of this century is such that only the strong man physically can hope for success. The ancient Athenian trained his body to excel in sports. The modern man of affairs trains his body to excel in his individual undertakings. A good brain may live in a poor body, but its days are numbered and its usefulness limited. The man who inherits health is fortunate, and he who cultivates it is wise, for without health the race is lost, for the modern twentieth-century pace is too swift for any but the strong and robust.

It is remarkable, but none the less a truthful fact, that the modern man who succeeds in any walk of life is a man of integrity. The old proverb, "Honesty is the best policy," has been amended to read, "Honesty is the only policy." Human nature is still human nature, and here and there we find a dishonest man; but in these times of large events he is the exception and not the rule. It is more necessary now that a man's word should be as good as his bond than it ever was before in the history of human endeavor; when, as the Good Book puts it, "His yea shall be yea and his nay shall be nay." Integrity is and necessarily must be one of the chief assets of the twentieth-century man, and he might as well adopt it in the beginning as in the end, for he must have it and have it in a large degree. The great enterprises of the world are carried on by men who do not shy at the truth either in business, politics, or in any other profession. The twentieth century demands and will have a man of integrity, for without this attribute success is impossible. We refer to the success in achievement, not in the mere accumulation of wealth. Any fool who strikes it rich may become wealthy, but the man who does things, who succeeds in accomplishing something, who leaves his mark in the world, lays in the foundation of his structure of success the corner-stone of integrity.

The modern questions entering into the government of this great country call for a higher character of citizenship on the part of its people. You and I have a far greater responsibility in this respect than our ancestors had. They builded and launched the great Ship of State, but to you and to me falls the duty of sailing it. The questions that confronted them were great and demanded heroic action, but the questions that confront us are far more momentous and far more intricate and complex. The wonderful development of this rich land has brought in its trail great problems of vital import,—problems that must be solved, and in the solving of which we individually must take a part. The men who signed the Declaration of Independence and the great patriots who fought for the same are to be honored and respected, but the battles of the New World have not all been fought. We see a tendency to array the masses against the classes, the poor against the rich; a disposition on the part of politicians to rob the public treasury; a reticence on the part of the average citizen to interest himself in local, state, and national politics; the high cost of living, and other questions which enter into our social and economic life,—these and many other complex problems are calling for a better and higher class of citizenship. It is the duty, and it should be the privilege, of each one of us to study more deeply these complex issues and be ready to meet them when they arise. We will need courage and a display of wisdom that probably the citizens of this country have never yet been called upon to exercise, and we should remember that these problems must be met and solved by the average man and in the solving the wisdom of the average voter will be manifested. We have great faith in the American citizen, but we should none of us cease to strive to raise our standard of patriotism, for on this alone rests the future of our great republic.

There should be no place in this busy life for the pessimist. Every American citizen should be an optimist and turn with a bright face toward our wonderful future, for we will soon be riding in ships that will sail through the air, in 60,000-ton steamers that will bind together the continents of the earth. We are living in an inventive age, when our messages are sent by wireless electricity, and when the problems of living and of commercial progress are being made easy. We are also living in a golden age, yet success in the twentieth century will not be the result of accident but of painstaking, skilful, and energetic effort. Opportunity may be great, but responsibility will be correspondingly greater. One must be alive and alert, for the leaders of men are doing things—great things. A few days since, in reading a copy of a technical magazine for engineers, we learned how the tides, currents, rivers, and the waterfalls are being harnessed, and how electric power is being transmitted hundreds of miles by wire; how, through the gas-producer engine, one-third of the earth's fuel is to be saved; how smoke and dirt are to disappear; how the railroads and factories will be supplied with power from immense central plants covering a radius of 500 miles; how electricity, when the proper storage-battery shall have been invented, will, through the medium of millions of immense wind-mills, be generated and stored for use in whatever quantity needed for the railroad, the steamship, the factory, the farm, and the home, abolishing coal, oil, and gas bills, giving to the world light, heat, and power at a cost—like education—practically free; how the turning of a button will wash the dishes and the clothes, do the cooking, the churning, the sewing, and the house-cleaning, without noise or dirt and without the aid or necessity for menial help; how the aeroplane, with its lyddite tanks, will destroy the armies and navies of the world, thereby saving countless millions of dollars and making bloody warfare a thing of the past; how Professor Hayes, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, has estimated that one extra grain in a head of wheat will mean 15,000,000 additional bushels to the crop in the United States, and how, by cross-breeding, he has procured seed that adds five bushels to the acre; how alfalfa, by irrigation, is made to grow in the great American Desert, feeding herds of cattle that, a few years ago, would have starved to death in the same locality; how Burbank, that wonderful man, has changed the thorny cactus into wholesome fodder; how American soldiers will fly; how boats will cross the Alps; and how many other marvellous things are being done. Truly this is an inventive age—an age of wealth, an age of responsibility, an age of opportunity, when man by his own effort can rise from obscurity to greatness; when the commerce of the globe is increasing; when the wealth of the world is doubling; and when the effort of man—the twentieth-century man, the man of hope, the man of health, the live-wire man—is measured only by his desire and his ability to work where his successes may be greater and his achievements larger. No man can predict the wonderful future of this great country in population, in wealth, or in the part it is to play in the progress of the human race toward a higher and better civilization. No man can have a prouder title during the present century, with its remarkable possibilities, than that which marks him as an active, energetic, patriotic, and successful American citizen; and no man can have a better field in which to labor, for this land of ours, to use a Biblical expression, is certainly “a land of milk and honey.”

of Carbondale, Pa., son of Dr. Andrew and Margaret Dorr Niles. After his graduation in the State Normal School, Mr. Niles took the prescribed course in the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, graduating in 1891.

The little love attachment which began in school days in Millersville broadened and sweetened, as the flower unfolds and ingrafts itself and sends its tendrils out and up, and found its full fruition in the happy marriage of Miss Alice Hunsicker and Dr. John S. Niles in the bride's home at Collegeville, 23 September, 1891, by Rev. Joseph Hendricks.

Dr. and Mrs. Niles took up their residence in Carbondale, where the doctor had an extensive practice. Mrs. Niles entered at once into the social life of the city, her fine talents fitting her admirably for its duties. Her exceptional training in elocution and music made her a favorite in church and charitable work, as well as in the social circles of the city. But it was perhaps within the endearing scenes of her own home where her tact and brilliancy and solicitude shone resplendent, making it a heart place as well as a home place, and bringing within its hallowed portals the love things of life.

It was here that affection and tenderness blended, and softened in reverence, and looked out upon a future that held no cloud; but, like a shadow that falls athwart a silver stream, or the twilight that steals upon us at dusk time, this happy home and happier union was to be broken, as a dream is broken in its tenderness and sweetness. Mrs. Niles sickened, and died 23 August, 1901, her death making us think of the rude crushing of a flower, as its petals had only opened. All that devoted hands could do to nurse her back to health and life, and bring sunshine to her sick bed, seemed but the shifting offerings of feeling and nature; and to-day she sleeps beneath a little patch of green, where affection oft places a rose or a daisy, or, perhaps, a forgetmenot, because she loved these things—sleeps for God's awaking. No issue. (For sketch and picture of Dr. John S. Niles, see under No. 1301.)

FREELAND G. HOBSON

Freeland G., only son and eldest child of Frank M. and Lizzie (Gotwalts) Hobson, was born in Upper Providence Township, Montgomery County, Pa., 13 October, 1857.

He was educated at Ursinus College, graduating in 1876; and in the same year began the study of law in the office of Jacob V. Gotwalts in Norristown. He was admitted to the Bar in March, 1880, and at once commenced the practice of law in Norristown.

He was actively interested in numerous financial and commercial corporations, which engaged much of his attention. In September, 1888, he organized (with others) the Norristown Trust Company, of which he became secretary and trust officer, and held this position at the time of his death. This corporation, of which he was the executive head, grew rapidly in public favor and became one of the most flourishing financial institutions in the county. His popularity among his fellow bankers was shown by his unanimous election as president of Group 2 of Pennsylvania Bankers' Association.

Mr. Hobson was deeply interested in education. His principal effort was to advance the interests of Ursinus College since his graduation in 1876. He was treasurer of the college for many years, and was the first alumnus to be elected to the board of directors of the college.

Mr. Hobson was interested also in the field of literature. He was the founder and editor of the Montgomery County Law Reporter, a weekly legal journal which reports all the decisions of the Montgomery County courts, and author of the "History of Providence Township," published in 1883. When the centennial of Montgomery County was celebrated in 1884, he was chairman of the executive committee of Montgomery County Historical Society, of which he was a charter member. He was also editor-in-chief of the commemorative volume. He was a prominent member of the Valley Forge Memorial Association and since 1886 was the treasurer and chairman of its executive committee.

He was one of three organizers of Riverside Cemetery and was secretary of the corporation from its founding.

He was useful and influential in the community, as a citizen, a devoted husband, and kind father. Was a liberal contributor to the Trinity Reformed Church, of which he was a member from his youth, being a ruling elder, also superintendent of the Sunday-school for a number of years, until his death, 10 January, 1906, after an illness of six weeks.

On 15 September, 1881, Mr. Hobson married Ella M., eldest daughter of Rev. Joseph H. Hendricks, her mother being Catherine Hunsicker, youngest daughter of Rev. Abraham Hunsicker. Four children were born, the eldest dying in infancy.

Children of Mary Ella<sup>5</sup> and Freeland G. Hobson:

He was born in Lower Providence Township, Montgomery County, Pa., on the farm formerly owned by his grandfather Garret D. Hunsicker. In his naming is preserved the first name of his father John R. Thomas and the middle name of a maternal uncle. In 1888, when fourteen years of age, the family moved from the farm to Norristown, and in 1895 to Jeffersonville, Pa. Besides conducting his farming operations, the father carried on an extensive business in the shipping and sale of live-stock. After leaving the farm, he devoted himself exclusively to this until the time of his death, 19 December, 1905. In both branches of the business the son rendered efficient aid to his father.

He was educated in the schools of his native township and of Norristown, later attending the West Chester State Normal School. In 1894 he entered the Medical Department of the University of Pennsylvania, graduating in 1898. Later he took post-graduate courses of study in the Philadelphia Hospital. ## SIXTH GENERATION

He was born on his grandfather Hunsicker's farm in Perkiomen Township, Pennsylvania. Left motherless when an infant of a few days, he was given, in memory of his mother, her middle family name, the middle name being, as well, the family name of the maternal grandmother.

His education was obtained in the public school of his native township, of Norristown, the West Chester State Normal School, and Schissler's Business College, Norristown, the latter attended at night. The family moved from the farm to Norristown, then to Jeffersonville.

As a mere boy he was entrusted with the responsibilities of important business matters by his father, who was a heavy dealer and shipper of live-stock. When but a youth of seventeen the son was sent to the interior and western counties of the State to purchase and ship car-loads of stock.

In 1898 he accepted a clerical position in Philadelphia. In 1900 he obtained employment as entry clerk with the Garrett-Buchanan Paper Company, Inc. (of which he is now the vice-president), one of the largest in the city. This position he held for a year and four months, when he was sent on the road to sell goods. Having purchased an interest in the business in 1907, at the next annual election he was honored by being elected to his present position. The president in 1909 giving up the active details of his position, Mr. Thomas has since been in entire charge.

Cool in judgment, deliberate in action, unassuming in manner, thoughtful of others, industrious, dependable, painstaking, he has, by sheer merit of character and achievement, advanced to the position with which his associates have seen fit to honor him.

He is a member of the Presbyterian church. Residence, 3608 N. Nineteenth Street, Tioga, Philadelphia.

He is the son of James H. Allebach and grandson of David G. Allebach, who married Catherine Hunsicker, daughter of Jacob Hunsicker. Was born in Towamencin Township, Montgomery County, February 18, 1864. The first sixteen years of his life were spent on a farm. Through his own efforts he acquired an education and took up the study of law in Philadelphia, which profession he was compelled to relinquish by reason of delicate health.

We quote from The United States Review of Philadelphia, in its "Underwriters of the Middle Department" edition of December 31, 1908, concerning his career as an insurance man:

He entered the fire-insurance business in the summer of 1884 as a solicitor for the Agricultural Insurance Company of Watertown, N. Y., at North Wales, Pa. Later he became local agent of the German American Insurance Company of New York at the same place in 1885, and district agent for the same company in 1888. In 1891 he was appointed special agent of the Delaware Insurance Company of Philadelphia for Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio, and West Virginia, with head-quarters at Pittsburg, Pa., and in 1892 he was appointed general agent of the Dayton Insurance Company, of Dayton, Ohio. From 1894 to 1901 he was an independent adjuster and inspector, with head-quarters at Philadelphia, and in the latter year started in business for himself at Phoenixville, Pa., where he is now conducting a large and lucrative fire-insurance business.

He is known as the author of "The Fire Insurance Agent and his Agency" and "Mutual Fire Insurance Fallacies," the former a standard thesis, and the latter the leading analysis of its kind in existence, both works enjoying a large and increasing circulation among fire-insurance and financial people.

He was born December 24, 1867, near Weavertown, Berks County, Pa. His parents, John M. and Alice M. Johnson, then resided on the Abram Rhoads farm. Alice M. Johnson, mother of John A. Johnson, and daughter of Abraham H. Vanderslice, is still living and resides at Reading, Pa.

In the spring of 1870 the parents of John A. Johnson moved to the George Lorah farm, where he attended school. At the age of eleven he started out to make his own living, hiring out and working on farms in the neighborhood during the summer months, and attended the public schools during the winter, until the spring of 1885, when he entered as an apprentice the flour and grist-mill of August Brown. At the expiration of the two years in the spring of 1887, believing that the West afforded better opportunities for young men, he went to Maquoketa, Iowa, where he worked on the farm of E. L. Cook for one year. Inducements being offered him to return and work at his trade in the mill of Mr. Brown, he came back to Pennsylvania in the spring of 1888. One year later (in March, 1889) he left again for Iowa, having taken a liking for the West, where he again worked on the farm of E. L. Cook, Sr., during the summer months of 1889 and 1890. During the winter of the same years he took a commercial course in the Davenport Business College, of Davenport, Iowa. While working in Iowa he heard very much of the Great Northwest and its wonderful resources, its good wages and opportunities for young men. In the spring of 1891 he went to Anaconda, Montana, then a small town, but now a city

It is characteristic of many of the successful men of the day that they have found their real vocation by passing through a series of callings, one growing out of the other, which have given them a comprehensive equipment for the management of an extensive modern industry. John Hunsicker, of Lebanon, the head of several manufacturing industries arising out of the great iron development in Lebanon County, is a man of this type. He has been in succession farmer, school-teacher, furnace-man, car-builder, boiler-manufacturer, etc., the industries with which he is at present connected including half a dozen or more branches of foundry and machine construction, of which the iron of the Cornwall ore-beds furnishes a principal factor.

A farmer's son, born and reared in sight of the great iron industries of the Lebanon Valley, John Hunsicker may be said to have absorbed his calling, in which he has proved eminently successful, from the air he breathed. He was born in Union Township, Lebanon County, the son of Jacob and Catharine Hunsicker.

His boyhood life was that of the ordinary farmer's boy, with the exception that he had more than the usual ambition for an education. This he was enabled to gratify, passing through the public schools of his native township with additional courses in the Jonestown College, Annville College, and Millersville Normal School, his school and college experience covering a period of nearly twenty years. Out of this school period should be deducted a term of service in the late Civil War, which entitles him to membership in the Grand Army, the only club or social organization with which he is affiliated.

Beginning his business career with the attainment of his majority, John Hunsicker alternated between farming and school-teaching for a time; but, with an ambition to engage in productive industry on a larger scale, he graduated through an experience in furnace work, car-building, etc., until he had obtained an all-around equipment in general foundry and machine work, becoming eventually a leading director in M. H. Treadwell & Company of Pennsylvania and the founder of the Union Boiler & Manufacturing Company, the Lebanon Stove Company, Lebanon Steam Company, and a number of subsidiary concerns, all in successful operation.

Mr. Hunsicker attributes his successful business career to this multifarious apprenticeship, which, he says, gave him a broad grasp of business; of course, along with the experience there was the exercise of industry, persistence, and the application of the general intelligence which he had secured through his school and college training. He brought to the work of his life a trained intellect, which enabled him to grasp and keep pace with the progressive business methods of his generation.

Having secured a place in the front rank of the successful men of the city of Lebanon, Mr. Hunsicker has not forgotten the duty every citizen owes to the community in which he lives. He has given intelligent and continuous service in the Select Council of the city of Lebanon for a period of twenty-three years, an office without salary and requiring the sacrifice of much valuable time on the part of a busy man like himself.

He is a Republican in politics, but beyond serving the municipality as a councilman has not engaged in active political contest, being content to be one of the great army of citizens who serve their country by promoting its industries and in this way adding to the general prosperity. Loyalty to his own country is a characteristic which he has carried to an extreme, which is shown by the fact that he has devoted his vacation seasons to travelling in all sections of the United States, preferring to become familiar with his own land and its attractions and resources to visiting foreign countries with languages and institutions entirely unlike those to which he is accustomed. He has no particular athletic fads, travel being his principal recreation.

Like most of the descendants of the German stock from which he sprung, Mr. Hunsicker is a man of strong religious conviction and a member of the United Brethren denomination in his town.

He resides at Lebanon, Pa.
